Consolidation Leads to Uneasiness

By NANCY STANCILL

A mood of uneasiness has crept into Daly City's Community Development and Public Works departments since employes learned the departments were to be consolidated.

In its adoption of the fiscal 1977-78 city budget, the Daly City City Council voted to consolidate the two departments as a money-saving measure.

Mayor Pro Tem William Schumacher proposed the consolidation as a means of combining functions and City Manager David Rowe reported after some study that the proposal could save about $90,000.

The $90,000 could be saved, he told the council, by cutting perhaps four positions from the combined departments.

Both the council and Rowe said they hope such goals can be reached through attrition, but the city manager concedes, "There may be a possibility of layoffs."

THE NERVOUSNESS that has resulted among the Consolidated Public Works-Community Development Department employes since the council action bothers Rowe.

It also disturbs City Engineer David Macabee and Community Development Director Don Fleming, who are now acting assistant consolidated department heads but are retaining their formal titles for the time being.

Rowe is acting head of ConPWCD, as it has been dubbed since July 1.

Macabee and Fleming both have said they don't know what the future will be for the consolidated department — or for their present positions.

"I don't know what's going to happen," said Macabee. "Wish I did."

And Fleming said of himself and Macabee in a half-serious vein, "Neither one of us knows which one will go. Maybe we both will."

Both men said they are concerned that department employes have shown fear for the future of their jobs.

"It's not knowing that hurts employes," said Macabee. "Down to the lowest labor personnel, they tend to think it's their job."

BUT MACABEE and Fleming both say that the departments have continued to function well.

Neither feels the two divisions appear to be overstaffed.

Fleming said Daly City has less employes per capita than most other cities in the Bay area. South San Francisco, he points out, has almost the same number of employes as Daly City's approximate 400, but half the population.

However, other observers point out that the city has completed a general plan, has little developable land and has wound down capital outlay projects somewhat. These factors would argue for slightly smaller community development and public works staffs, some say.

One person who's saying very little is Rowe. He's the one who will have to recommend changes in the consolidated department.

He met recently with ConPWCD to let employes know how the study of the department will work.

Rowe said during the next three months, he will complete an analysis of the functions of administration, planning, housing, redevelopment, engineering, building and electrical divisions.

Then, during the following three-month period, from October to December, he will study the streets and water divisions.

ROWE PLANNED to begin his study this week by scheduling appointments with each employe of the various divisions.

Besides having the opportunity to tell the city manager private impressions of how the department functions, the employe will be asked to fill out an anonymous questionnaire about the division's workings.

The city manager said he is considering hiring a consultant to aid in composing the survey for the employes.

Rowe said he will report to the council Sept. 1 on the progress of consolidation and expects to have it completed by Jan. 1.

Besides salaries, he noted that other areas of city savings could result from consolidated use of city vehicles and in other service areas.

Daly City got a helping hand when new CETA workers were hired. Out in full force this week are (from left) Joseph Miceli, John Anderson and Donnie Fobbs.

Eleven New Workers in DC

Daly City got 11 new employes last week — courtesy of the federal government.

The 11 city residents who began last Monday in such positions as park workers, library assistants and typists are but a trickle in the flow of new workers employed by the Federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) monies.

The Daly City area recently was allocated $2,156,682 in Title II and Title VI CETA funds to be spent over a 16-month period ending in Sept. 1978.

The record funding is expected to provide about 150 short-term positions for unemployed residents of Daly City. The workers must meet strict standards of income level, length of unemployment and other federally-mandated measures of eligibility.

CINDY PARMA, city personnel director, said the 312 90th St. office in Daly City has been accepting applications from city residents for several months for the new phase of funding.

Mrs. Parma said applications from several hundred city residents are in various stages of completion, as the process requires many checks for eligibility.

She urged residents who have not applied and who meet such conditions as unemployment for 15 weeks or more to stop by the office for an application.

Ray Letsinger, Asst. City Manager, said the city hopes to fill the bulk of the CETA positions by the end of September, although he stressed that hiring will continue as long as funds are available.

Letsinger said the city is also interested in more applications from non-profit agencies that

Hearing Slated on Broadmoor Contract

"You'll see a unanimous Broadmoor, rather than a factional Broadmoor," Broadmoor Police Protection District Manager Bill Beard promised Daly City's City Council Monday.

Beard's words came after the City Council decided in a study session to set a public hearing for Aug. 1 to consider a second, temporary contract between Daly City and the Broadmoor district.

The former police chief, currently serving as the district manager, told the council, "The people of Broadmoor are united in the request" that Daly City provide the unincorporated area with police protection on a temporary basis.

He said community support would be evident at the August hearing.

The council decided to consider the request for a second, six-month contract after listening to Beard and Broadmoor Police Commissioners Wayne Johnson and Dean Davenport.

Johnson, who was instrumental in a citizens' action which won a preliminary injunction stopping the police commission from signing a permanent, seven-year contract with Daly City, was questioned by the council.

Mayor pro tem William Schumacher asked Johnson why he supports a temporary contract when he has opposed a permanent one.

"Quite truthfully, we can't afford a temporary contract with the (San Mateo County) Sheriff's Office," said Johnson.

The police commissioner added, "My only objection to a long-term contract with Daly City was that there was no escape clause."

Three weeks ago, San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Melvin Cohn ruled that the police commission could not sign the proposed permanent contract with Daly City because it did not contain a reasonable cancellation clause. The contract provided for cancellation only in the event of material default.

Deputy Dist. Atty. George Camerlengo last week filed a petition for a writ in the state Court of Appeal asking that the judge's decision be reviewed and that the commission be allowed to sign the permanent contract.

Camerlengo said Monday he expects a decision by Aug. 1.

Daly City, until July 1, had been providing police service to the Broadmoor area under a temporary contract which began Jan. 1.

Prior to that date, the Broadmoor Police Department had functioned as an independent entity until the district lost its liability insurance and was forced to contract for police service.

Since the permanent contract with Daly City fell through, the Sheriff's Office has been providing service to the unicorporated area, but has told Broadmoor that continuation of service would cost about $244,000 a year.

The three police commissioners have all said that's more than the district can afford.

In a meeting Friday, the commission voted to set a maximum tax rate of $1.50 per $100 of assessed valuation to raise money for whatever option the commission decides to take.

The commission was scheduled to meet again tonight to talk further about 1977-78 fiscal year budget. The commissioners Friday also authorized Beard to step up his efforts to secure a temporary contract with Daly City.

Other questions of Johnson at the Daly City City Council meeting Monday night concerned the status of the police commissioner's efforts to get liability insurance. Johnson has deposited a $5,000 insurance binder from community donations with a Burlingame insurance agent.

Johnson said no written proposal from the agent has so far been presented to the commission.

Though both Johnson and Commissioner Davenport

Anti-Crime Panel Handed Setback

The Anti-Crime League of Daly City, which just received a $10,000 grant from the San Francisco Foundation, got a setback Monday.

The citizens group, composed of members from four residents associations and a merchants organization, has applied for another $10,000 grant.

But Daly City Manager David Rose told league directors Ernie Pezzola and Conrad Pavellas that "there's a substantial question about whether the organizaton is an appropriate activity under Housing and Community Development Act (HCDA) funding."

Rowe said the city will send materials about the league to federal officials in an effort to get the funding.

The grant from the San Francisco Foundation, which attempts "to alleviate problems or enrich some aspect of life in the five Bay Area counties," will be used for communicatin and outreach.

Pezzola said the HCDA funding is earmarked for rental of a league office and to pay a part-time staff.

Teens, Parents Attend Council Meet

Crowd Asks for Summer Jobs

Daly City's City Council had no answer Monday when it was confronted by about 35 teen-agers and parents desiring summer employment for youth.

The predominantly black and Asian group appeared at the end of the council's Monday study session to press for action for unemployed youth.

Mrs. Clara Haynes, president of the newly-formed Daly City Multipurpose and Educational Service Center, said about 80 teenagers who live in the area between Junipero Serra Boulevard and Mission Street need work.

Asst. City Manager Ray Letsinger said most city positions for youth workers, funded by Neighborhood Youth Corps monies, have been filled.

He said not much else is on the horizon for city employment of youth, but urged the youngsters to make application if they haven't done so.

One yount charged that jobs for teenagers never go to the young people from his area of the city.

Council members said such is not the case and Councilman McRobert Stewart said Daly City hires more youth than most other cities in San Mateo County.

Mayor Albert Teglia urged the youth to come up with ideas for private employment, rather than depending entirely on the city.

"Generating jobs is not as easy as it seems," he said.

Parking Near BART Delayed

It may be January before preferential parking regulations to aid Daly City residents living near the BART station are enforced.

Daly City's City Council Monday decided that an Environmental Impact Report (EIR) will have to be completed on the affected areas of Westlake, Crocker and Original Daly City before preferential parking can go into effect.

City Manager David Rowe noted that the EIR process will take several months to reach the council. The report will be undertaken by the city planning staff.

The city adopted an ordinance this spring setting up the machinery for preferential parking, which will provide for stiff fines for commuter parkers squeezing out residents.

Southern Pacific Makes Bus Offer

Southern Pacific Transportation Co. today took another dramatic shot at getting out of the Peninsula commuter train business by announcing an offer to pay for $8 million worth of buses to replace its trains.

This money would buy enough buses to accommodate the 7,500 daily rail commuters, according to SP Vice President Alan D. DeMoss.

The offer came as the railroad, under state Public Utilities Commission procedures, moved to submit by Thursday advance copies of testimony to be offered at the start of Peninsula commute service abandonment hearings Aug. 1.

SP had applied for the abandonment in May, claiming its San Jose to San Francisco commute volume has dropped from 16,000 to 7,500 since 1954 and that it loses $10 million

County-Wide Look

Grim Fireworks Picture Failed to Develop

By FRANK LaPIERRE

During the past year, fire chiefs throughout the state have pushed their city councils to take swift action to ban the sale of all types of fireworks.

They used California's worst drought in the past 100 years to support their theory that fireworks, dry weather and an extreme water shortage would spark the worst fire year ever.

A picture of raging forest and house fires was painted for the benefit of the councils.

But few elected officials opted to ban the only fireworks now allowed by the state fire marshal — so-called "safe and sane" fireworks.

In San Mateo County only two cities agreed with the San Mateo County Fire Chief's Association: Belmont and Brisbane.

The grim portrait of injuries to children and excessive fires posed by the firefighters and some city officials failed to materialize.

Reasoning behind the need for at least a temporary fireworks ban appeared to be justified in a year that made homes, fields and forests potentially prime material for a disaster of dramatic proportions.

Why hadn't the predictions come true in San Mateo County?

South San Francisco Fire Chief Lawrence Toellner said the reason, he had heard, was that sales of legal fireworks were down by as much as 70 per cent.

Brisbane Fire Chief "Dutch" Moritz, president of the county's Fire Chiefs' Association, said the lesser number of fires and injuries may have been because many county residents opted to stay away from fireworks stands this year.

One of the county's largest distributors of "safe and sane fireworks," Leo Crawford, of Red Devil Fireworks in San Carlos, credited the low fire and injury figures attributed to the Fourth of July pyrotechnic devices to "the intelligence of the citizenry."

"Some (officials) think the only way to prevent these fires is to ban all fireworks," Crawford said. "For many years, firecrackers (illegal in California) have been banned for all but religious ceremonies. Still these firecrackers are bought by children and discharged every year."

Crawford says most of the "deadly injuries

Programs Plead for Funding

By RICK SULLIVAN

Proponents of county-funded special programs and services jammed the conference room of the Board of Supervisors Monday night to urge that "human needs" not be sacrificed for the sake of a tax rate reduction.

At the third and final budget information session conducted in Redwood City, representatives for special interest groups far outnumbered opponents of the rising cost of government, who were so vocal at the two prior sessions held in the north and central sections of the county.

The board had scheduled the sessions to advise their constituents of the county's bleak financial status this fiscal year and to invite public comment on county operations.

Specifically, the board had hoped that proponents of high-cost government programs would interact with taxpayer groups which are demanding that those very programs be cut to reduce the property taxes they pay.

If the first two sessions were somewhat stacked with advocates of low-cost government, the final session saw the tables turned.

Supervisors heard such comments as:

"Everyone is aware that this is a tight budget year, but my concern," said Hodges Picott of East Palo Alto, "is that you apply your limited budget with emphasis on human needs and human services."

"I've been in and out of the penal system since I was nine years old," remarked Alan Fanburg of Foster City. "The methadone maintenance center has helped me crawl out of the gutter that I lived in."

"I don't believe that a cutback in services is the answer (to correcting the fiscal problems)," but, instead, streamlining the administration could be, added Elizabeth Brown of East Palo Alto.

"The Veteran Services in this county is the best," remarked one resident. "Let your conscience be your guide when it comes to the veteran situation."

As at the previous sessions, County Manager David Nichols summarized the county's financial plight: its $11.4 million deficit, created by underbudgeting, use of no longer available federal and special funds, and the state mandated cost increases in law enforcement, required state payments and payments caused by inflation.

Nichols also told of how the board had, over the past several months, initiated significant cost savings by placing a freeze on hiring, laying off employes and refusing to fund any new programs and services.

As if sensing that their own special programs might fall victim to the axe when the supervisors begin detailed examination of a proposed $202 million budget on Wednesday, program advocates came forth Monday to plead that the programs be continued.

Arnett Urges Federal Initiative

Assemblyman Dixon Arnett, R-Redwood City, has agreed to serve as the state's representative to push a constitutional amendment to permit federal lawmaking by initiative ballot measures.

The proposed amendment has been introduced into the U.S. Senate by Sen. James Abourezk, D-South Dakota.

Arnett called introduction of the measure "the first great bipartisan step toward full democratic power for the people of the United States."

Arnett added that the measure proposed by the South Dakota Democrat has been backed by the Republican State Central Committee of California for the past two years.

The California GOP in August 1975 adopted a resolution in support of a change in the U.S. Constitution to provide a federal initiative process. That measure was authored by Arnett.

"There is no reason why federal citizens should not have the same direct legislative tool to enact and repeal laws as the citizens of California and 22 other states have," Arnett said.

If approved, the amendment would require an initiative petition to contain valid signatures from 3 per cent of the number of persons who voted in the previous presidential election — and those signatures must include 3 per cent of the number of presidential voters in at least 10 states.

"That means a total of 2.45 million valid signatures," Arnett said. He said because of the normal number of invalid signatures, initiative proponents could expect to have to gather four million signatures.

"This could be done for a worthy cause," Arnett added, "but it is sufficiently difficult to discourage frivolous initiative campaigns."

Trains

a year on the service now.

"We need only to look at the successful bus systems operated by AC Transit (in the East Bay) and Golden Gate Transit (from Marin County) to foresee that the expanding service provided by SamTrans (San Mateo County Transit District), in cooperation with Santa Clara (County) Transit (District), will give the Peninsula and San Francisco a more efficient, more convenient and less expensive service than the railroad can provide," DeMoss' statement said today.

He added that buses use less fuel and cost less per passenger mile than commute trains. SamTrans officials weren't available for comment today.

SamTrans now operates commute buses from Palo Alto to San Francisco, with heavy service to the Daly City BART station and San Francisco International Airport. The district also has a plan to subsidize rail transportation by buying tickets from SP and reselling them at reduced rates to commuters as a means of keeping more people out of their cars. The district is on record as opposing the SP abandonment and plans to testify before the PUC against it.

The SamTrans board of directors in April awarded a contract for 74 new buses for $6,324,800, which averages out to $85,470.27 per bus.

At that price the $8 million offered by SP would finance 94 buses for the two county systems, or roughly half the number now operated by SamTrans alone.

Hearing

asked the council for immediate consideration of a temporary contract, City Atty. Albert Polonsky of Daly City urged the council to go slow.

The council agreed with Polonsky that Daly City should have an indication of whether a writ allowing a permanent contract to be signed is forthcoming before it acts on a temporary contract.

Polonsky also said he would like an expression of the opinions of the seven Broadmoor and two Daly City residents who brought the suit against the permanent contract.

Mayor Albert Teglia said he favors a public hearing to find out what Daly City residents think about a second contract. He said the council could possibly act on the matter Aug. 8 and, if approved, the temporary contract could go into effect Sept. 1.

City Manager David Rowe said he would present the council with further information on a temporary contract.

Fate of Mountain To Be Discussed

The state Parks and Recreation Commission will meet in San Francisco on Friday to discuss, among other things, a resolution concerning the proposed regional park plan for San Bruno Mountain.

The meeting will be held at 10 a.m. at the Hilton Hotel in San Francisco.

Popular singer Helen Reddy was recently appointed to the commission but it is not yet knownif she will be able to attend the meeting, which would be her first as a commissioner.

A commission spokesman said the proposed resolution — if adopted — would add the San Bruno Mountain project to the category of new projects and additions to the state Beach, Parks and Recreational and Historical Facilities Bond Act of 1974.

San Mateo County agencies have been interested in developing a park on the mountain since 1973. A master plan prepared for the county by private consultants proposes 15 miles of hiking and riding trails, many picnic sites and a day camp facility.

The total cost of the proposed project — according to the master plan — is $3.1 million.

Parks proponents from throughout the county are expected to attend the commission meeting.

Fireworks

and fires" are caused by such illegal devices as bottle rockets, M-80, cherry bombs and Roman candles — all easily bought on the "Black Market."

In many cases, Crawford argues, bottle rockets, banned statewide for many years, touch off devastating roof fires. So-called "firecrackers" have been known to blast out a child's eye, blow off fingers and even result in death.

On July 11, long after the nation's 1977 birthday celebrations were over, Crawford pointed out, a 10-year-old San Jose boy lit a firecracker and dropped it into a partially filled drum of gasoline on a visit to Oregon.

The drum exploded, seriously burning the child and sending the drum hundreds of feet into the air.

Both sides in the argument over banning all fireworks agree that an all-out effort to publicize the danger involved in even the smallest pyrotechnic display through the media and group lectures assisted in keeping fire figures low this year.

Fire departments committed much energy and time to this education program.

Crawford said his company spent "thousands of dollars" on radio, television and newspaper advertisements to alert the public on the safe use of fireworks.

"Obviously we (in the legal fireworks business) want to continue to sell our products. That's why we have in the past lectured people to use fireworks with great caution and to properly supervise their children whenever they use these displays," Crawford said.

To date, no accurate figures are available as to how many fires were caused by fireworks — both legal and illegal — in the county during the July Fourth season this year.

Meanwhile, Crawford disputed Toellner and Moritz statements that fireworks sales at stands maintained by local service club groups were far below previous years.

"Sales were above last year's figure even though prices were about the same," Crawford said.

CETA

could use the services of a short-term employe or two.

DALY CITY'S CITY Council Monday approved a list of agreements with such agencies as the Daly City Chamber of Commerce and Bayshore School District that have applied for such services.

CETA employes generally fall into the categories of manual worker, para-professional and special projects employe, said Mrs. Parma.

Thus, the city may hire both a custodian trainee with a 10th grade education and a library worker with college credits.

Mrs. Parma said the personnel office has been so busy attempting to hire the 150 employes that she has requested CETA employes to help with the process.

One of Mrs. Parma's prime coordinators of CETA hiring, Karen Ginsburg, is a product of the CETA program.

Ms. Ginsburg was hired in April as a CETA employe, joining the 175 such workers who are presently or have been employed by Daly City since the program began more than three years ago there.

The young woman realizes that the maximum period of employment in the program is 18 months, but she doesn't let that dampen her enthusiasm for her job.

"I'M AN EXAMPLE of the process of developing and continuing skills that will aid in my future employment," she said.

Ms. Ginsburg believes most of the CETA employes, though they may eventually leave the federally-funded position for a permanent job, find the program rewarding.

"You can learn as much as you have the energy to learn," she concluded.

Fire Causes Damage

A fire which apparently started when hot ashes from a fireplace fell between the floor and walls of a Daly City apartment-store building caused an estimated $800 in damages Monday.

The fire was quickly extinguished by firefighters with a portable 2½ gallon backpack water tank, a spokesman said.

Damaged in the fire was the Vertex Ski and Dive Shop, 2123 Junipero Serra

Good morning, good cooks.

A lightly textured dairy casserole is a pleasant change for summer dining. You can count on dairy foods to provide excellent nutrition that satisfies the appetite without being rich or heavy. This double cheese chile bake is a delicious example. Made with 8 ounces of cottage cheese and Monterey jack cheese plus milk and eggs, it becomes a good protein rich dish.

The consistency of this easy entree is delicate and light, similar to custard. The popular chile relleno flavor is sure to please everyone. Ingredients are layered and are equally attractive, baked in a single casserole or in individual bakers, whatever suits the cook's fancy.

Should you need but two servings, the recipe divides in half beautifully. Notice, too, that this versatile recipe is mde entirely from foods usually kept on hand in refrigerator or pantry. Accompanied with any kind of salad the last minute chef tosses together, you'll have a nice and easy summer menu.

COTTAGE CHEESE CHILE BAKE

- 1 cup small curd cottage cheese
- ½ cup milk
- 2 eggs
- ¼ cup flour
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon oregano
- ¼ teaspoon basil
- 8 ounces Monterey jack cheese, grated
- 1 (4 ounce) can diced green chiles

Combine the one cup cottage cheese, one-half cup milk, two eggs, one-fourth cup flour and one-eighth teaspoon salt in an electric blender. Whir until smooth. Stir in the fourth teaspoon basil and half teaspoon oregano.

Pour half the mixture (1 cup) into greased 8-inch baking pan or 4 (1½ cup) individual bakers. Cover with one-half cup of jack cheese. Sprinkle with the four ounces chiles. Cover with remaining cottage cheese mixture. Sprinkle with remaining half cup jack cheese.

Bake in 400 degree oven 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve hot.

Garnish with sour cream and watercress if desired. Makes 4 servings.

DC Library 'Friends' Visit SF

The Friends of the Daly City Library will pay a visit to San Francisco State University's Library this morning, according to word from president Mrs. Virginia Tierney.

Mrs. Tierney, who was pleased to note that the university was enthused about showing the group through the five story structure that houses the half of a million volumes.

Persons wishing to see the library will gather at the Westlake Library at 10:30 this morning and go by car pools to the university. Following the tour and a visit to the several special collections housed in the library, the group will have lunch at the Student Union.

Louanne Heath

Mrs. Virginia Tierney, president of the Friends of the Daly City Library, is very pleased about a summer tour of the library at San Francisco State which she has arranged.

Members who are interested in seeing the university's collection of a half a million books housed in a five story facility on the campus should meet at the Westlake Library at 10:30 a.m. today. Car pools will be arranged to the campus.

The tour will include the main portion of the library as well as visits to the special collections which are housed at the university. Following the visit to the library the group will have lunch at the Student Union.

The first book review scheduled for the fall will be held on Sept. 15 with guest reviewer Samuel Chandler.

Mary Louise Kachur is in the midst of an exciting experience in Topeka, Kansas.

Mary Louise is part of the Girl Scout Wider Opportunity program this summer and is now learning about ecosystems, prehistoric Indian cultures and American legends. About 100 girls representing every section of this country are attending this special camp.

Summer visitor in the Westlake home of Mrs. Betty Kjeldgaard is Christina Roper of Homberg, Germany.

"Tina", who is learning English by the "sink or swim" method has seen her first baseball game, (the A's lost ingloriously to Texas) and helped with a classroom of 21 first graders at a church summer program.

Tony Kutner of the San Mateo Arts Council was the "surprise entertainer" featured at the Daly City Senior Citizens Club during a recent meeting.

Kutner played his guitar and sang several original songs. The second "surprise entertainer" is slated to appear on the club's July 27 meeting.

Mrs. Dorothy Rehfeld was the first prize winner at the San Mateo County Forum Picnic. The Daly City lady won with a lovely Hawaiian costume. Mrs. Rehfeld was one of a large contingent representing the Senior Citizens club at the forum and one of several from the group who won prizes of various types.

Welcomed home this past weekend were four Westlake residents who had been on a concert tour to Southern California.

Gary Borghello, Sue Nessier, Sue Silverster and Karen Weis returned from Anahiem where they and several other youthful members of the Campana Ringers presented an English Hand Bell Concert.

Fun stops at Disneyland and Santa Barbara were included in the tour agenda.

Celebrating their second wedding anniversary at the Moonraker in Pacifica were Mr. and Mrs. Nick Heath of Westlake.

The family celebration ended in the early hours with dancing at Nick's Rockaway.

Visiting Westlake as a guest of Mrs. Betty Kjelgaard is Christina Roper of Homburg, Germany.

"Tina" has been introduced to American baseball, vacation church school and lots of American slang. Visits to Marine World/Africa USA, Great America and other fun spots are on the agenda.

Soon to be learning about America are Gilda Gai, Julia Chang and Bi Hwa Lui, representing the Girl Scouts of the Taiwan Association of the Republic of China.

The young ladies will arrive in the United States on July 20 as part of a program made possible by the Girl Scout Juliette Low Friendship Fund established to bring Girl Scouts together from different parts of the world to help build international friendships.

While local scouts have not been traveling that far they haven't had a dull summer. Three local girls have been enjoying the Wider Opportunity program which makes possible special camp experiences to qualified girls.

This year, Seona Connolly, a junior at Mercy High School and a member of Daly City Mariner Troop 13, has just returned from "A Taste of Medicine," the special camp held in Nebraska. Attending the same gathering was Cheryl Figone, a senior at Westmoor High School and the leader of Brownie troop 2059. Down in Kansas Mary Louise Kachur, a sophomore at Mercy and a Daly City Senior Girl Scout was attending Kansas Sampler, another special Wider Opportunity gathering.

Mrs. James Marino, who does publicity for the local Girl Scouts, explained that girls by the hundreds from all across the United States apply to take part in Wider Opportunities gatherings and only a few are selected. The fact that three girls from the local council were chosen was very surprising and most gratifying to the adults who work hard to make scouting in this area top notch.

Home from a fishing and sight seeing tour that took them from Montana's scenic mountain areas into Canada are Mr. and Mrs. John Madrosen of Westlake.

Mrs. Louise Buttle, publicity chairman for the 300 member Senior Citizens Club which meets in the Lincoln Park Memorial building, is encouraging seniors in the western sector of Daly City to consider joining the new unit being sponsored by the Daly City Park and Recreation Department.

DC Man Named To AAA Position

The California State Automobile Association (AAA) has announced the appointment of Daly City's Rush M. Manbert to the position of manager of the technical support department in the San Francisco main office.

A native San Francisca, Manbert holds a bachelor's degree from the University of California, at Berkeley. He served eight years with the Army.

Manbert began his career with the CSA inter-insurance bureau underwriting department in 1960. He was promoted to manager of the systems department in 1964 and advanced to manager of the systems and programming department in 1969.

He is a member of the Systems and Procedures Association of San Francisco and the Union Square Optimists Club.

Manbert lives in Daly City with his wife Lois. They have a daughter and two sons.

How to Stay Alert?

Montara Man Plans Solo Voyage to Japan

By TERRY DAVENPORT

In just a few days, Andrew Urbanczyk of Montara will shove off in a 27-foot sloop on a 12,000-mile solo voyage across the Pacific Ocean.

He doesn't expect it to be easy.

"A lot of us singlehanded sailors are a little bit crazy, I ask myself, 'Why not stay at home with your wife, drink a little wine and enjoy the ocean view from the balcony?' But sometimes you have to do something," he said in a soft accent tinged by his Russian-Polish-German upbringing.

Urbanczyk figures it will take him about 30 days to reach Hawaii, where his wife will join him while he waits for the typhoon season to pass.

Then he'll continue sailing for another two months until he reaches Japan.

"Perhaps it will not take so long," he said, explaining that he wants to go slowly to avoid risking damage to his boat which he bought with his own money.

He feels fortunate that much of the equipment he's taking along was donated by companies who are interested in learning how it performs on his extended voyage. He'll be testing new types of compasses, radio director finders, radar reflectors, and signals and flares for such institutions as the National Science Foundation, International Oceanographic Foundation, Ocean Research and Education Center, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Davis Instrument Co. in San Leandro.

One company is supplying a new kind of life raft, which he hopes he won't have to test.

Urbanczyk also will be trying out new kinds of medicines which should help him stay awake. Sleeping too long is one of his main concerns.

"I just saw a movie about Lindbergh and his biggest problem was keeping awake," Urbanczyk remarked, noting that some sailors resort to wounding themselves in order to stay alert.

ANDREW URBANCZYK

It's possible to sleep for a couple of hours while an automatic steering device pilots the boats he said, but sleep is not possible during crisis situations such as high winds.

When he found himself nodding off on a recent test voyage from Los Angeles to San Francisco, Urbanczyk cut his lips with his teeth so that the pain kept him awake.

The 41-year-old engineer has done extensive reading to gain a thorough knowledge of the problems that may lie ahead.

"I know this is no joke," he commented.

He's learned that people can survive about 40 days without food, but only five days without water. "After three days without water, a man can't close his eyes," Urbanczyk said.

Although he's logged more than 35,000 miles at sea his only prior experience sailing alone was that 12-day voyage between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

His first nautical accomplishment was to sail across the Baltic Sea at the age of 21 in a handmade wooden raft named "North." That voyage attracted media attention for him and his two sailing mates.

Seven years ago, he sailed across the Atlantic Ocean with one friend in a rebuilt lifeboat called "North II." His new craft is named "North III."

While sailing across the Pacific, Urbanczyk will be collecting data for his doctoral thesis on sea water radioactivity for the University of Heidelberg. He'll also be shooting color film that he intends to splice together into scientific movies when he returns home.

His wife, Kristine, has been a great supporting influence he reports: "My wife knows me from the time when I was very active in sailing in Europe. She is a sports type of person herself; she's played about 12 years of professional basketball. Many times she's even given me a push. She says, 'Andy, if you like to do this, do it.'"

Her steady income as an x-ray technician helped make the voyage financially possible. Urbanczyk explained that he's been self-employed for the past two years, working as a chemistry consultant, translating scientific documents for the U.S. Information Agency and, at the same time, building their house in Montara with only Kristine's help on the weekends.

Urbanczyk took an enormous cut in pay when he left Germany five years ago and moved to the United States. Although he had worked as an engineer for a large firm in Germany, the only job he could find here was in maintenance. Later he progressed to doing engineering work at a lower level than he had previously reached.

"But I was very glad for the work. I know how hard it is for people in my field here," he commented.

He had no intention of living in the U.S. when he first arrived in Fresno. He and Kristine were all set for travel from Germany to Australia when they got a call from a friend in Fresno who had lived in their home as an exchange student.

"He said, 'Don't go to Australia. Come to America first.' I said, 'America is such a hard country, with racial problems, pollution, guns in the streets.'

"But finally I said to my wife, 'I shall take the risk of the constant bullets and go myself.' We were planning to meet later. After three days in America, I sent a telegram to my wife and said, 'This is fantastic; you come, too!'"

Although they spent their first months in Fresno during the summer, when temperatures soared to more than 110 degrees, Urbanczyk said he knew right away that this is the best of all countries.

"It would be very hard to make me leave. If someone would remove me from America, he would have to cut off my arms and legs first."

When he arrives in Japan, Urbanczyk intends to try to locate his grandmother, if she's still alive. His grandfather married a Japanese ship captain's daughter after fleeing the Russian Revolution. However, his grandfather later divorced the woman, and Urbanczyk does not know if he'll be able to track her down.

He is realistic about his chances for completing the voyage.

"Perhaps it will be too hard. I am not so young anymore," he said. But he won't be satisfied until he tries.

Jail Conditions Appall Jury

The overcrowded conditions at the county jail "appalls" the Grand Jury, which recommends in its annual report that the Board of Supervisors construct a North County jail and also continue to operate a medium security facility at La Honda.

"Overcrowding and understaffing (at the main jail at the Hall of Justice) have combined to make safe and effective operation of the jail impossible, and as a result both the personal safety of the prisoners and the morale of the jail staff are threatened," the jury report stated.

The jurors noted that the cramped conditions have forced deputies to lay matresses across the floor for inmates to sleep on and has thus "created a serious hardship for the prisoners and management."

The Board of Supervisors have long been aware of the conditions at the jail.

Earlier this year they moved some of the male prisoners from the main jail to a temporary facility at La Honda. And just last month the board set as its top priority the use of $1.2 million in new federal public works funds, to construct a women's correctional facility in Redwood City.

The transfers of the female inmates from the main jail, would alleviate to a large degree the overcrowded conditions.

County Manager David Nichols also has included in his proposed 1977-78 budget funds to operate a pre-arraignment and detention facility at the Daly City jail. The jail will serve police departments in the North County.

In its final report, the grand jury also recommended that the Board of Supervisors reduce departmental travel budgets by 50 per cent and that the supervisors limit their terms of office to three, or a total of 12 years.

The jurors suggested that the supervisors cut travel costs for county-related business in all departments by allowing only one person per department to attend conferences and report back to his colleagues what was learned.

Tickets are available at the recreation department office or at the door.

Ottoboni Anniversary Feted by 150 in SSF

More than 150 friends, relatives and civic leaders gathered at the Brentwood Lodge in South San Francisco recently to celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of Colma Councilman Raymond D. Ottoboni and his wife, Mae.

The dinner-dance affair was hosted by their son, Raymond J. Ottoboni, also a former councilman and mayor.

The Rev. R.J. McCormick of Holy Angels' parish in Colma was present to offer the blessing of the marriage which took place 50 years ago at St. Peter's Church in San Francisco.

Ottoboni, who is the dean of San Mateo County councilmen, is retired from the florist business. He was owner-operator of the Pioneer Nursery and Florist, founded in Colma by his father in 1860.

The couple moved to Colma more than 40 years ago and have taken an active role in development of the city. He has been a councilman for 28 years.

Attending the wedding was the flower girl at the original ceremony, Norma DeMartini Cresci. In addition to son Raymond, Mrs. Ottoboni's sister, Rose Campana, also was present.

Master of ceremonies, former Daly City Mayor Frank Pacelli, introduced a number of city and county officials who were presen

New Manager for Savings

Robert M. Wiese has assumed responsibility for the South San Francisco branch of Glendale Federal Savings, according to Jim Dangerfield, regional vice president of the Peninsula Region of the $2.8 billion financial institution.

Wiese, an assistant secretary to the association, moves from his position as Cupertino branch manager. Formerly, he was regional savings administrator in Southern California.

Since joining the savings and loan in July 1969 as savings manager trainee, Wiese has held several positions of increasing responsibility.

Wiese, his wife and two children, are residents of Redwood City.

Humorous Competitions

San Mateo County's Fair and Floral Fiesta, well-known for its spirtied and humorous competitions, is offering everyone a chance to try for a trophy, ribbon or prize.

The Perfect Legs Contest on Aug. 4 promises to be a special treat this year, with popular KGSC-TV, Channel 36, All Night Movie hosts Old Sourdough and Wachikanoka acting as emcees.

The nimble-footed can try to impress judges with their versatility in the Skateboard Contest July 26.

Babies under one year old can crawl to the finish line in the Diaper Derby, sponsored by the Hillsdale Optimist Club July 31.

Youngsters can test their appetites in a Banana Eating Contest July 26, a Tortellini Eating Contest July 27 or a Watermelon Eating Contest Aug. 3.

There is sure to be fun in store for all entrants in the popular Hula Dancing Contest July 29.

There are also creative cooking contests.

For contest information contact the Fair administration office, 345-3541.

Allen Comedy Staged

Woody Allen's "Play It Again, Sam," a popular farce both on Broadway and in the films, will be staged in San Francisco State's Little Theater in the Creative Arts building off Holloway near 19th Avenue at 8 p.m. through July 23 by the university summer stock company.

General admission is $3 with half price discounts for senior citizens and students.

The play was first produced in 1969. Woody Allen was featured as the nervous movie reviewer who's trying to be Humphrey Bogart with women.

Paul Marvel, who directs the San Francisco State version, says it is a "story of a man's search for himself — a comic reach for identity."

This fanciful and funny tale is the third offering of the university's summer stock. Along with providing popular entertainment for the community this month, the program furnishes intensive training for a stock company of some 30 actors and technicians coming from over the State. Jack Cook, Professor of Theater Arts, directs the project.

Help Wanted

The following agencies have requested volunteer assistance from the Volunteer Bureau/Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County, with offices in Burlingame, Daly City and Redwood City.

The local telephone number for area residents is 992-0957, an answering service. Residents may also call the main office in Burlingame at 342-0801, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Day Camp for the Handicapped — Volunteers are urgently needed to assist at the annual day camp for handicapped children and young adults held at Coyote Point in August. Volunteers are essential to the success of the camp due to the time and attention they can give to each camper. Youth and adult volunteers will assist with various outdoor recreation activities. Volunteers serve for a two-week session from 9:45 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. with two sessions to choose from both in August.

YWCA — Interested volunteers are needed to help plan and create a shelter for battered women in San Mateo County. The time and the hours are flexible. Meeting times will be arranged.

Volunteers in Probation Service — A volunteer with a Lifesaving Certificate is needed to help at the Jefferson School pool on Wednesday and Friday from 1 to 2:15 p.m.

Camp Sierra for the Handicapped — Volunteer assistance is needed for this resident camp for handicapped persons held in three areas in the Sierras. The camp continues until Aug. 28, with one week sessions to choose from. Transportation will be provided from San Francisco and volunteers are welcome to come for only one week.

Additional information about these and other interesting volunteer opportunities may be obtained by contacting the Volunteer Bureau at the telephone numbers listed above or by dropping by the main office in Burlingame, located at 119 Primrose Road. Interviews will be made in Daly City by appointment only.

League to Recognize Citizen

The July 24 luncheon of the Anti-Crime League of Daly City, at the Westlake Clubhouse from noon to 3 p.m., will feature prizes and a special award.

The award will be a recognition of merit to someone the directors of the League will pick as the "Most Effective Citizen of the Year Against Crime."

Five organizations have banded together to fight crime using the methods devised by Frank Karavos, president of the League. Residents' groups are Bayshore Residents, Southern Hills Homeowners, Crocker Neighborhood, and Original Daly City Protective Association. They are joined by Mission Merchants Association and individual members.

The "Spaghetti Luncheon" tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children and may be obtained either by calling the member associations or by phoning 756-8192, which is the number of Conrad Pavellas, vice-president.

There are donated prizes and the food will be cooked by chef Max Ramos of the Southern Hills association.

County Moves To Aid Children

The San Mateo County Child Abuse Council, in conjunction with 25 other organizations and agencies, recently conducted a conference/workshop aimed at preventing and/or remedying child abuse and neglect situations within this community.

They met with the following objectives: (1) to create an awareness to the problem central to the many forms of child abuse and neglect as they are made manifest in our county; (2) present to the community their problems and resources involved in child abuse and neglect; (3) seek ways to prevent and remedy these problems; and (4) propose a set of recommendations that our county government, our agencies and organizations can pursue to these ends.

Approximately 140 persons assisted in drafting the following set of recommendations which have been issued to all members of the Board of Supervisors, county manager, and directors of the Department of Health and Welfare, Mental Health Services, Probation Department and the Grand Jury.

They agreed that the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors and Grand Jury, among other things, should:

- Take a closer look at the county budget in regard to service for child abuse and neglect to be sure it is costed and budgeted as a separate item and explore available federal and state funds.
- Redirect revenue sharing priorities toward human services and away from hardware and land purchases.
- Give fiscal support to existing agencies which work on prevention of child abuse.
- Give fiscal support to the new resources; including a 24-hour, in-home, respite care service for parents and/or children; a county-wide, 24-hour toll-free stress hotline (with satellite offices) for parents and/or children in crisis and a 24-hour, seven-day multi-disciplinary response and reporting center system, based in a hospital setting.
- Set one priority providing for resources strictly for children. These resources should provide support personnel in schools funded by the county, coordinate child advocacy that now exists, provide counseling sessions for children who are being disciplined, have ongoing local walk-in, rap session type groups for children for purpose of prevention and within schools and other places where children normally congregate.
- Request an in-depth investigation of licensed homes, simplification of the social worker process, and development of a family court system where families have access to qualified and experienced legal consultation and assistance.
- Be supportive of Child Abuse Education for parents, children, police departments, institutions, general community and media via some organized system.

NEWS DIGEST

Retirees Explain Joy of Learning

If you're retired or getting close to retirement, a lively group of men and women who already have reached that stage have created their own program for lifelong learning.

They are members of the Center for Learning in Retirement, based at the University of California Extension Center in San Francisco. They will host an open introductory meeting Aug. 8.

It is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. in the Center Gallery at the UC Extension facility, Laguna and Market Streets. Anyone at or near retirement age can attend.

The group's activities include workshops, study groups, field trips, lectures and participation in regular UC Extension adult education courses.

Organized in 1973, CLIR now has nearly 200 members. It was the first such university-related project in the western United States and has been a model for similar efforts elsewhere.

For more information about the introductory meeting and CLIR call 863-4518 or visit the Extension Center.

High Flying Stunts Planned

A demonstration of sailplane aerobatics has been scheduled in the program of events for the Moffett Air Show planned for July 30 and 31.

The demonstration will be performed in a Schweizer 2-32 all-metal sailplane. The Schweizer craft weighs approximately half a ton empty, can carry up to three adults, and is valued at over $25,000 new.

Its aerobatic capabilities are significant, despite the fact that gravity is its only source of power. In the demonstration it will execute inverted flight, loops, a clover-leaf, wingovers and a tail-slide, a maneuver difficult or impossible to perform in most powered aircraft.

Headlining the free two-day Navy show will be the Blue Angels who will be performing their only 1977 Bay Area shows at Moffett. Gates to the air station will open at 10 a.m. and close at 5 p.m.

Search for Musclemen

Entrants are sought for the third annual Mr. California Golden Bear and Mr. California Golden Bear (over 40) competition and fitness rally to be conducted September 3 at California's Great State Fair.

Trophies will go to winners of the top five places for the Mr. California Golden Bear 1977 contest and the top three places in the Mr. California Golden Bear (over 40) competition.

Trophies also will be awarded for the "most muscular" in each division and for the "best poser."

Special guest stars at the show will be LaLanne and Frank Columbu, who has won the Mr. Universe, Mr. World and Mr. Olympia titles.

Columbu will demonstrate an unusual feat of strength never before attempted.

Entries for the contest may be obtained by writing to Special Events Director, California State Fair, P.O. Box 15649, Sacramento 95813. Entry fee is $3.

Area Employment Up

Employment reached an all-time high of 1,391,200 in June in the five Bay Area counties.

State Employment Development Department labor market analysts said the latest count was up 8,200 from 1,383,000 in May, and 18,700 from 1,372,500 a year ago — a gain of 1.4 per cent.

Also improved was the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate as June dipped to 8.2 per cent — lowest since 8.0 in November, 1974. May's rate was 8.7, and last June it was 10.2.

IRS Sets New Hours

The Internal Revenue Service has announced the San Mateo office of the IRS has new hours for taxpayer service.

The office is now open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to assist taxpayers in San Mateo County. The office will resume an eight-hour assistance day during the 1978 tax filing period.

Telephone service will continue to be available on weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Taxpayers calling from the Millbrae, Pacifica, San Bruno, San Mateo and South San Francisco exchanges should telephone 658-9515 for tax assistance and 653-3641 for tax forms. All others should call toll-free (800) 772-2345.

Cap Reunion

The Capuchino High School Class of 1967 is planning a 10-Year Reunion.

For more information call 583-7806 or (408) 923-8259.

Salvage Search

The Volunteers of America has extended its annual Summer Search for Salvage.

Volunteers are seeking serviceable clothing, shoes, gas and electrical appliances of all kinds, radios, televisions, furniture and household furnishings; baby furniture and equipment; dishes, silver, office equipment and furniture.

Donors can call 626-0434 to arrange appointment for free truck pickup service of donations at homes or businesses.

'PAUL HARRIS' RECIPIENTS

Jack Kendree and Al Simonetti congratulate one another as recipients of the "Paul Harris Fellow of The Rotary Foundation." The Rotary Club of Daly City honored Kendree with this award for his years of service, leadership and inspiration to the local club. Simonetti demonstrated his own enthusiasm with the qualifying contribution of $1,000 to the Foundation. The founder of Rotary International was Paul Harris. Through The Rotary Foundation begun in 1947, more than 5,000 technical, undergraduate and graduate students have been sent abroad for a year of university study with all expenses paid. Students also are sent to the United States by Rotarians in other nations. The purpose is to foster international understanding and goodwill. Students interested in applying for such study may contact Rotarian Dave Macabee at the City Hall of Daly City.

Flower Show to Open

The 40th annual San Francisco County Fair Flower Show and Plant Sale opens Aug. 26 at the Hall of Flowers in Golden Gate Park and runs through Aug. 28.

The show is the most extensive flower exhibition to be presented in Northern California and has been acclaimed "the most beautiful flower show in the West."

To celebrate the 40th anniversary of the show an entirely new setting for the prize-winning blooms has been created by landscape architects. There are waterfalls, reflecting pools and dramatic settings backgrounding exotic tropical plants and sandy desert-like scenes with scores of rare cactus and succulents.

There also is a concourse of booths where growers offer a wide variety of plants, containers and garden accessories. Live demonstrations by authorities on plant care, potting, pruning and fertilization are a daily feature of the show.

Among the flowers entered for nearly $8,000 in prizes are African violets, begonias, fuchsias, gesneria, bonsais, bromeliads, cactus and succulents, carnations, dahlias, orchids, geraniums and roses.

There are also exotic carnivorous plants, palms, ferns and flowering bushes.

The show will be previewed from 6 to 8 p.m. Aug. 25, with proceeds from the $5 admission benefiting the Josephine D. Randall Junior Museum.

Regular admission to the show which officially opens at 10 a.m. Aug. 26 is $1.50 (senior citizens $1). The show continues daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and closes Sunday at 6 p.m.

DC Firm Joins $1 Million Club

The C.I.T. Financial Services office at 187 Southgate Ave. is one of a select group honored with membership in the company's President's Million Dollar Club.

The award is made to company offices that top $1 million in personal loan outstandings, according to Glen E. Jorgensen, president.

"Ours is essentially a service business," said Jorgensen, "and customer relations naturally play an important role in building business. We recognize that the members of our office force have played a vital part in both serving their customers and increasing our business."

Members of the President's Million Dollar Club in Daly City are Ray Kligge, manager; Carol Hannah, customer service representative; and Bettie Gray, service assistant.

C.I. T. Financial Services, with a nationwide network of more than 850 branches, offers a wide range of consumer services including personal loans, second mortgage homeowner loans and the financing of mobile homes and recreational vehicles and home improvements.

Knights Set Dinner

Grand Knight Enrique Lamout announced that Marian Council No. 3773, Knights of Columbus, will hold its annual Fireworks Dinner on Saturday evening, July 23, at Nick's Rockaway Restaurant, 100 Rockaway Beach Ave., Pacifica.

No host cocktails begin at 7 p.m., followed by dinner at 8.

In announcing the dinner, Lamout said, "This dinner is an annual affair, held by the council, to show appreciation to those members who manned our Fireworks Stand the week preceding the Fourth of July. They were instrumental in making this year's sale the most successful one we have ever participated in."

Two Named As Directors

Two Daly City residents have been elected to serve on the board of directors of the San Mateo County Service League.

Mrs. Helen Moses and Louis McCally will represent Daly City.

The Service League is a United Way agency, under contract to the county, that provides social and rehabilitative services to persons in jail and to their families.

The agency has a branch in Daly City.

Senate Installed

An installation ceremony recently at Our Lady of Angels church in Daly City for members of their parish senate saw 12 members installed. They were Mrs. Carolyn Coppock, chairman; Walter Cavagnaro, vice-chairman; Mrs. Jean Flanagan, secretary; Mrs. Roberta McElroy, parliamentarian; Robert Gillespy, Richard Rossi, Thomas Bannan, Russell Bayley, Herman Fitzgerald, Mrs. Pat Sabatini, Stanley Distel and Lenore Lucett, senate members.

Our Lady of Angels parish senate was formed in 1967 to serve as an advisory body to the pastor. Senate members are elected by the people of the parish for a two-year term of office.

Gymnastics Camp

The Brotherhood Way Jewish Community Center, 655 Brotherhood Way, San Francisco, announces the start of the third session of its Gymnastics Camp.

The Gymnastics Camp will be Aug. 1-12, 9 a.m. to noon.

Joining Gymnastics Coach Oleg Kofman, is Russian-born Fred Voskoboynikov, who has coached gymnastics for 16 years.

Registration will be limited. For more information call 334-7474.

Camp Achavah Set

The Brotherhood Way Jewish Community Center announced that there are a limited number of spaces available for session two, which begins Aug. 1, of kindercamp and Camp Achavah. The registration deadline is July 25.

Kindercamp, for 2½ to five year olds, under the direction of nursery director Maria Solis, meets daily from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Monday through Friday with special two, three and five days a week programs. Extended day care is available from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., and from 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Camp Achavah, for 5 to 11 year olds, meets in the sunny San Bruno Hills. Achavah is under the direction of Don Becker, the center's full time children's director. Transportation from central location points throughout the City and in the Northern Peninsula are available. The Camp meets daily from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. An overnight, arts and crafts, swim instruction, cookouts, hiking, sports and drama are among the program highlights.

Kindercamp and Camp Achavah both meet for four weeks, Aug. 1-26. For more information, call 334-7474.

GIRL SCOUTING

Dr. and Mrs. John Connolly, their four children, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stewart and their daughter, all of Daly City, and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hale of the San Mateo peninsula, will host three Taiwan Association, Republic of China Girl Scouts this week (July 20-27).

These Chinese Girl Scouts, ranging in age from 17 to 21, are the first delegates to the local Council. Girls will teach games, hand arts and music to Bay Area Scouts in various local camps.

Gilda Gau, Julia Chang and Bi Hwa Lui will stay in the homes of Bay Area Scouting families during their entire July stay in this country.

The girls will share information about their country's culture and customs with local Scouts. Their visit was made possible by the Girl Scout Juliette Low World Friendship Fund which brings Girl Scouts together from different parts of the world to build international friendship.

45 Bruno Aides Picket City Hall

Some 45 San Bruno city employes set up picket lines at 7 o'clock Monday at city hall, surprising other city workers and management personnel.

Although city officials are calling the move a strike, representatives for the employes who weren't working today called it a lock-out.

The 45 employes work in cable television and in the park, street and sewer departments.

They are members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, Local 2190.

Negotiations between that union and the city have been going on for two months.

"Starting on Friday night it became more and more obvious that the city was pushing a strike," said George Popyack, Local 2190 business representative.

"It looks like a contest whether this is a strike or a lock-out," Popyack said.

The employes had voted July 7 to reject the city's latest offer at that time and to strike if a more suitable offer wasn't forthcoming.

Popyack met with representatives for the city last week. By Friday, an offer for a 1977-78 contract suitable for the city workers still hadn't been placed on the table, Popyack said.

The employes met with Popyack at 6:30 a.m. Monday and decided immediately to set up picket lines at City Hall, as well as the park and street department corporation yards.

Popyack said picket lines also were set up at the War Memorial Building — the city's recreation department — and the city pool in San Bruno Park.

Local 2190 also has a roving crew utilizing citizens band radios to keep an eye on other city facilities — including the sewage and water plants — making sure other workers are not brought in by city management.

Popyack said picket lines also caused a private contractor hired by the city to shut down operations on Forest Lane.

The representative said the union is considering this a "lock-out" because the city management has changed the locks to buildings where the Local 2190 members work.

The city, he said, had asked all the employes of that union to turn in their keys last week.

City Manager Gerald Minford had said this was in anticipation of a strike. Experience has shown, he said, that vandalism does occur in strikes and there's no guarantee that the city's expensive equipment won't be vandalized.

The main conflict in the negotiations centers on a salary increase for 1977-78. Popyack said the employes will accept no less than a 6.5 per cent salary increase to keep up with the cost of living for the last year.

The city, he said, has offered them about a 5 per cent salary increase.

Local 2190 is now asking for a state mediator to be appointed to sit in on the negotiations, when, and if, they resume.

A letter also is being sent to Mayor Gary Mondfrans asking for a face-to-face meeting with the City Council, rather than a meeting with the city's hired negotiator.

Assistant City Manager Jack Mulqueeney said it appeared Monday that all other city workers who are members of other unions are crossing picket lines and going to work.

"All normal city essential services will be provided," Mulqueeney said. There should be no disruption in day-to-day services for the general public, he added.

Management personnel will perform the work normally done by Local 2190 employes, Mulqueeney said.

"The management of City Hall and all the various departments will be called upon to give assistance if necessary," Mulqueeney reported.

Citizens' Group Takes On Local TV Origination Issue

By TERRY DAVENPORT

A group of Pacifica citizens has banded together in an effort to improve the city's local cable television programming.

Called Pacifica Community Television, the group is comprised of eight prominent Pacificans and is headed by Harland Minshew, a former mayor of Pacifica who now serves as chief investigator for the Private Defenders Office of San Mateo County.

Minshew said the primary objective of the group is to provide a management facility for local origination of television programs in Pacifica.

"We feel this can best be done by a public nonprofit corporation responsible to and with a board of directors elected by the local subscribers of TCI Pacifica Cable Co.," said Minshew.

The quality of local programming long has been a bone of contention between the City Council and TCI. TCI recently was denied a rate increase when the council determined that its service was not satisfactory. The council agreed to reconsider TCI's request for a rate hike is September.

"What we all believe is that Pacifica should have a good local station. We're extremely mixed on other city issues," remarked one member, Barbara Carr, who is a realtor and chairman of the Pacifica Citizens Crime Prevention Committee.

She said the group hopes to resolve the confusion over who is responsible for local origination, taking some of the burden off the City Council, which long has been frustrated by problems with the station.

Minshew explained that the group believes a local contracting body is needed to provide management of the station that is responsible to the community.

"We believe a public, nonprofit corporation is the answer. We do not intend to force that solution on anyone, only to make such a public corporation available as a service to the city, and Community Tele-Communications, Inc.," said Minshew.

Another member, Joseph Fulford, said the new group is not critical of the existing local managers of the station. "We're not rocking the boat; we're working with the status quo," he said.

Fulford is chairman of the county's Democratic Central Committee and is married to Pacifica Councilwoman Janice Fulford.

He said it's obvious the city does not want to undertake the responsibility of running the studio itself, as some cities have.

Fulford also noted that the eight members are not assuming they will be elected to Pacifica Community Television's board of directors. "If any of us gets elected fine, but we're prepared to work with whoever is elected."

Other members of the new group are Grace McCarthy, a former Pacifica mayor; Wayne Johnson; printer and sports producer on local television Channel 8; Charles Starr, senior engineer with Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.; Alice Porter, attorney; and John Geary, realtor and producer of political information programs on Channel 8.

Espostos Mark 25th Anniversary

The San Bruno home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Esposto was the setting for the silver wedding anniversary party honoring her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schmiedel Jr. of South San Francisco.

The former Selma Merle Strack became the bride of Frank Schmiedel on June 21, 1952 in San Francisco. They have lived in San Mateo County for 23 years.

Kim Schmiedel, the couple's daughter, served as the hostess for the surprise party which was attended by 35 relatives and close friends. They included the couple's other children: Eric Schmiedel of San Bruno, Lori Schmiedel of South San Francisco and Mike Schmiedel who traveled from Southern California where he is stationed at the El Toro Marine Base.

Daly City, Pacifica Blacked Out

More than 20,000 Pacifica and Daly City Pacific Gas and Electric Co. customers found themselves without power for a brief time last week.

The power blackout, which occurred at 5:55 a.m., hit the outer Mission area of Daly City, part of Lake Merced and the east side of Pacifica, PG&E officials said.

The spokesman said heavy fog in the Daly City area apparently combined with dust on a transformer on a 115,000-volt line.

Six thousand homes were without power for two minutes, and another 15,000 homes were out for 45 minutes.

The PG&E spokesman said the power was restored at 6:40 a.m.

No Problems For New Pacifica Treatment Plant

All is well with Pacifica's sewage treatment plant, says Stephen Street, director of community development and services.

Street said he believes Pacificans are needlessly concerned that there may be additional problems with the hookup of the secondary treatment plant — now under construction — to the primary plant, which has had numerous problems.

"The plant is going to run and meet all EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) standards, so no one needs to worry that it won't do what it's supposed to do." said Street.

Rumors about possible problems must have begun, he said, when his department asked the plant's builder, Consoer Townsend & Associates, to answer some questions about it.

"We have to run the plant, so naturally we are concerned," said Street.

He declined to reveal what those questions are, but said there's no cause for alarm. "Construction is right on schedule," he remarked. The secondary reatment plant now is about 30 per cent completed and is scheduled to be done by next summer.

City Council members have confirmed that the questions revolve around the hookup of the secondary plant to the primary plant and include queries about the functioning of the primary plant itself.

Street said he'll have the answers to the questions in time to give a full report at the next City Council meeting July 25.

"I presume Consoer Townsend will be at that meeting," he added.

He dismissed rumors about problems with the plant costing an additional $1 million as "ridiculous," but did not rule out the possibility that additional taxpayer funds could be involved.

There will be no unreasonable expenses, he said, pointing out that the cost of the plant currently is less than the $4.4 million for which the city signed.

Since a full 88 per cent of the plant's cost is being paid by the California Water Resources Board and the EPA, Street said, "If we decide we want something additional that was not in the original design, we would hope that it would also be paid for."

He's confident about progress on the plant, which once had residents up in arms, complaining about its potent odor.

"To my knowledge, there's been no complaint about the odor for 2½ months," he said.

Street hopes the rumors about the plant are quelled soon.

He was expecting a thorough grilling by the Regional Water Quality Control Board Tuesday when he asked them for "temporary relief" — a monthly request that, if approved, allows homeowners to hook up houses to the sewer system though Pacifica is under a cease and desist order from the board.

Pacifica Plan On View Tonight

Public comments on the general plan being prepared for Pacifica were invited at the Planning Commission meeting Monday.

Bob Ironside of Ironside & Associates was on hand to note reactions to the preliminary report he wrote after a day-long public workshop and small meetings with citizens.

Ironside said he wants as much public feedback as possible before the next workshop is scheduled.

His company is receiving $98,000 to rewrite the plan by next spring.

Pacifica City Council members objected earlier that they felt left out of the general plan discussions. Ironside pacified them by scheduling an open study session with the council "sometime in August."

The plan represents "blue sky" to many Pacificans who claim it is the answer to the city's problems.

All of the 100 citizens who attended the first workshop received copies of the 20-page report.

Groups Receive Foundation Grants

Four San Mateo County organizations have been awarded a total of $54,590 in grants by the San Francisco Foundation.

They are:

- A $11,850 humanities grant to Science and Human Values, Inc. of Daly City to produce a series of public education programs focusing on economic, ecological and political issues concerned with the sea.
- A $23,500 health grant to the Planned Parenthood Association of San Mateo County to conduct a comparative family planning study to demonstrate the effectiveness of a new method of screening and detecting VD and cancer.
- A $10,000 urban affairs grant to the Anti-Crime League of Daly City for a project to promote and increase communication with Daly City residents in an effort to reduce crime in the city.
- A $9,240 urban affairs grant to the Organization for the Legal Advancement of Raza of South San Francisco to support a four-week summer legal studies institute for Raza law students in the Bay Area.

The Foundation made grants totalling $896,356 to 35 Bay Area organizations in the fields of art, education, environment, health, social studies, urban affairs and the humanities, according to Martin A. Paley, Foundation director.

A Difficult Time Ahead for Supervisors

By RICK SULLIVAN
—ANALYSIS—

It's soul-searching time for San Mateo County's five supervisors.

Beginning today and for 10 consecutive days after today, this county's governing board will examine a $202 million proposed budget in an effort to determine which county programs and services will be funded by money collected from property taxpayers.

The procedure is expected to be painstaking.

Each summer, members of the Board of Supervisors, like their counterparts in municipalities, school districts and special districts, must face their constitutents in open session on the thorny issues of budgets and taxation.

It's rarely a pleasant task for anyone involved. Compromise and consensus is the bottom line of decision-making, and as a consequence, few participants complete the process with any high degree of accomplishment or satisfaction.

The board's budget sessions this month, however, are likely to be more difficult than in past years. In fact, they could generate some volatility among all who take part: administrators, taxpayers and the board members themselves.

This year the board must grapple with a budget some $27 million higher than last year's budget. It must examine the necessity of a county tax rate of $1.95 — a 12-cent increase over last year's rate — needed to finance in part the expenditures proposed by County Manager David Nichols.

Supervisors also must deal with a $11.4 million deficit created last year by inadvertant "underbudgeting and the lack of millions of dollars in no longer available federal revenue sharing money and special funds.

Then there is the much talked about and resented state-mandated expenditures in the areas of MediCal and adult welfare.

This all comes at a time when the reassessment of homes has taken a dramatic increase — up an average of 23.6 per cent.

In anticipation of the outrage a budget of the size proposed would generate among tax-weary property owners, the Board of Supervisors two months ago scheduled a series of budget information sessions.

They were designed to explain to constituents the reasons the county is in such a financial fix and to further emphasize that the supervisors have direct control over only about half of the county budget.

Two sessions have been held so far, one in the North County, one in the Central County. A total of about 350 persons have attended the meetings.

Most attendees seemed to grasp the complexities of the fiscal dilemma facing the board, but they nevertheless demanded that somehow their elected representatives find a way to cut their taxes.

One group collectively told the board to cut taxes no matter what the consequences, and another group said to cut taxes, but not by eliminating special programs and services.

It is, however, these special programs and services, which the supervisors will have to cut if any great reduction in the tax rate is to be achieved.

Before his budget was presented to the board, Nichols instructed all his department heads to prepare a report on how their individual budgets could be reduced to last year's net county costs.

He did this so the supervisors could see just where cuts could be made and what the ramifications of the cuts would be.

The possible cutbacks totalled approximately $14 million.

College Budget Jumps

Trustees of the San Mateo County Community College District Wednesday approved their 1977-78 publication budget.

The budget comes to a total of $39.7 million. Expenditures will be $33.4 million, up about $2.1 million from the previous year.

Income has been increased from $31.4 million to $34 million. A major reason for that is that enrollments at the district's three schools are expected to rise by about 587 fulltime equivalent students to an all-time high of 18,694.

The tax rate to fund the new budget, which will be approved in final form Aug. 3, will be 71 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, a decrease of about 8 cents from 1976-77.

However, because the district's income is going to increase and because assessments have increased significantly countywide, taxpayers in this county will have to pay slightly higher taxes this year to support the district's operations.

The district has reserves worth nearly $5 million. Much of that will be used to provide salary increases for employe groups. It is expected the trustees will grant 1977-78 salary boosts to teachers within the next several weeks.

Both teacher organizations, the American Federation of Teachers and the California Teachers Association, have agreed to allow the trustees to act unilaterally this year in order to settle the salary question early.

The AFT and CTA are struggling for dominance in the district. The winner will become the sole negotiator for teachers at the bargaining table in the future.

At Wednesday night's meeting of the governing board, Trustee James Tormey took several verbal potshots at the leadership of the AFT vis-a-vis the budget.

The AFT has criticized the board for not using its full taxing authority over the last five years. In a budget bulletin produced earlier this year, the AFT said, "AFT analysis shows that the college district tax rate is low in absolute and relative terms."

The AFT contends the district has failed to pay its part-time teachers enough money for their services.

"AFT...believes our board should levy the full available tax under the present system," said the bulletin.

The AFT claims the board could have taxed at a higher rate and collected some $8 million more in revenue.

Tormey rapped the AFT for that posture. "We couldn't adopt this budget (the 1977-78 district budget) if we had done what they (the AFT) have said," Tormey stated.

He said the AFT's stance would have brought fiscal calamity to the district.

Again in this new fiscal year, the board is not going to tax to the limit of its power.

Grand Jury Asks Division of DA's Duties

By RICK SULLIVAN

The San Mateo County Grand Jury recommends in its final year-end report that the Board of Supervisors again place on the ballot a measure allowing the separation of the office of district attorney and county counsel.

Dist. Atty. Keith Sorenson has for many years advocated such a separation.

The report, approved by the 19-member grand jury for fiscal year 1976-77, states that if such a separation does occur, then the county manager should initiate a wide-ranging effort to recruit an outside individual to fill the office of county counsel.

The grand jury said that the dual district attorney-county counsel situation is "replete with conflicts of interests and make far too many demands on the district attorney's office.

"In a number of areas, such as cases involving alleged brutality by members of the sheriff's office, the district attorney is placed in the position of the Board of Supervisors in any potential civil suit, even though he is the counsel for that board." the report states.

Currently, the district attorney's office must prosecute criminal cases and also advise and defend county boards and commissions on civil matters.

"The present arrangement," the jurors concurred, "demands that the district attorney be familiar with two widely separate fields of law, and although we have been impressed with Mr. Sorenson's ability to do this, the increasing complexity of the law makes this almost an impossible task."

Today at his daily news conference Sorenson welcomed the grand jury recommendation and vowed he would continue to urge the Board of Supervisors to place the issue of separation of his office on the ballot.

Such a measure was placed before the voters last November and in 1972. Both times the issue was defeated. In 1974 the board refused to allow the voters to decide the matter.

"I will again request that the board place this same issue on the ballot next June," Sorenson said today.

The district attorney complained that the dual role of his offices places a burden on his office, which he maintained is understaffed.

Sorenson said his deputies are so overworked that they do not have the time to adequately prepare cases. And he added that the rate of growth in his office has been "extremely slow."

"We have long been among the lowest in the state in terms of staffing in both criminal and civil matters," said Sorenson.

Althoug County Manager David Nichols has proposed that the board authorize three new deputies in his office this fiscal year, Sorenson said he needs twice that many deputies to do a proper job.

"This understaffing unquestionably has effects on the quality of prosecution," Sorenson offered. He added, however, that he has never allowed the staffing problem to affect the pre-trial disposition of cases.

The grand jury does recommend in its report that the board hire another deputy district attorney and an investigator for the Consumer Fraud Division, and Sorenson agreed today that such a step was necessary.

But he said he has set three other staffing priorities, before Consumer Fraud, including the Family Support Legal Unit, the Superior Court felony unit and the Municipal Court pre-trial hearings and misdemeanor unit.

Sorenson explained that on any given Monday there can be from six to 12 Superior Court cases that must be handled and he said he only has seven available deputies. As a consequence he must assign deputies more than one case.

Riders Set Bus Record

Another record number of passengers rode San Mateo County Transit District buses during the month of June, pushing the first-year total well over its projection of six million.

District figures show that 726,536 patrons boarded SamTrans buses in June, making the first-year total for the district 6,769,501, nearly 13 per cent over the goal. The previous monthly record was March, with 700,009 riding the buses.

June's figure included 135,436 senior citizens and handicapped riders at reduced fares, also a monthly record.

But SamTrans may not quite make its projected $1.2 million intake from the fare box for the year because of a 10-cent youth fare inaugurated in April.

Farebox receipts so far are $1,151,818, but some money still is expected from SamTrans sales outlets around the county, a spokesman said.

A ridership goal of twice as many, or 14 million, has been set for this fiscal year, ending next July 1.

With the takeover of the former Greyhound Lines commute service in this county, SamTrans had nearly half again as many buses in operation as of July 2 and a whole new market in commute service between San Francisco and Palo Alto.

Report Blasts LAFCO

The San Mateo County Grand Jury charged in its year-end report released today that the Local Agency Formation Commission engages in costly duplication of county services and recommended that the director of planning be appointed the agency chief.

If the Board of Supervisors were to approve the recommendation, B. Sherman Coffman, current executive director of LAFCO, would be replaced by Donald Woolfe, planning director.

The Grand Jury stated that the LAFCO staff duplicates the services of the Planning Department and also pursues areas of study not directly related to the responsibilities of the commission. These include such areas as political, social and economic composition of communities in the county.

"We believe," the Grand Jury report stated, "that information regarding these areas, if it should become necessary to LAFCO, could better be gathered by the staff of the Planning Commission."

In recommending that the planning director take charge of LAFCO, the Grand Jury noted, "This

Play that funky music, white boy
Play that funky music right
Play down to boggie
And play that funky music
Till you die.

Black music, black rhythms and styles have been called the most influential force in popular music today. "They," the editors of Chartwell Books write, "have been the basis of rock from the very start; rock and roll itself was a black invention taken over by the white recording industry."

Added to this, the editors of Stars and Superstars of Black Music (Chartwell Books, 1977 $5.98) hold that black musicians are creators and innovators who make black music pre-eminent and mold its course and change it from the work-songs of slaves to the anthems of super stars."

Among the anthems of popular black music are the songs sung by Ray Charles, called the High Priest of Soul and the "sweet 'n' soulful" sounds of the Stylesters, and the churning singing of Marvin Gaye who sings his songs with a motto, "Ain't nothing like the real thing."

Ray Charles writes that spirit is the core of black music. He believes it is made of "critical things, like passion, like sincerety, like any semblance of real feeling." He says the singers of such music must feel within themselves that what they're doing is really right — a true artist will be around a long time. So Charles sings of hard times and the rockhouse and the long time blues and calls such music the "pure gospel."

The editors of "Black Music" write that "despite the enormous influence of their music on the development of (white) pops, black American artists have for many years come up against an endless series of racial barriers blocking their general acceptance and classing most of their work as mere jungle music." But the '70s have brought a rapid change with black artists telling Americans of black consciousness and replacing the old love — lost and won — stereotype with soul music that is heavy with meaning.

This has caused many black teenagers to reach out and make idols of the black singers who speak their language. A list of such stars includes the Jackson Five, The Four Tops, Steve Cropper of Booker T and the MG's, and Stevie Wonder, who helped to make R & B assume its place, not as a separate, purely ethnic art form, but as an integral and vital part of the rock scene.

The Chartwell book leads a reader to wonder if the time may come when the Motown Record Corporation will be listed by historians as one of the vital forces in American during the last half of the 20th century. Motown cuts records for black stars and distributes them through America, Britain and Europe. Motown gives voice to such successful groups as the Marvelettes and the Temptations. Motown provides writers and musicians to help the black stars. It releases records with messages for all who hear them to understand. It counsels stars and offers constructive criticism. "The Sound of Young America" became Motown's slogan as it grew into a major recording force.

The story of Motown and the stars of black music is told in the Chartwell book with pictures and commentaries that make it a pleasure to read.

The de Lerma book is a collection of papers presented at the Black Music Center at Indiana University. Its primary interest is all types of black music rather than just "pop." Its purpose is to show that a study of black music, regardless of such special genres as soul, gospel, jazz, rock and roll is a discipline worthy of university classes and of research.

In the conclusion de Lerma observes that "Black music often relates directly to social functions. It is a part of life, not a superimposition on it. It is the agent for social communication, not just social commentary . . . and it can be found in protest songs, in freedom songs, in work songs, in satirical music."

San Bruno Flap Over Leaflets

San Bruno Councilman Dick Griffith has criticized and questioned the use of city materials and labor to print leaflets for a civic beautification organization.

In a memo to City Mgr. Gerald Minford, Griffith has asked for a clarification of the responsibilities of Art-Rise.

He also has suggested that the assistance the city has given the organization, headed by Lois Nierenberg, is contrary to the City Council's intent.

Mrs. Nierenberg has responded that Griffith's statements are "unfounded rumors" and "inuendos."

"I imagine somewhere there are volunteers who find ways to cheat cities, so I suppose Mr. Griffith should be commended for searching long hours for questionable items," she said in a written response to Griffith's memo.

"But, as long as there are honest answers in San Bruno, and there are, I think we can easily solve his problems," she said.

Griffith said that on June 23, 1976, the council and staff agreed formation of Art-Rise would be beneficial to the community, but "expressed concerns with it being an official city committee."

He said City Atty. Joseph Galligan recommended at the time that Art-Rise become a non-profit organization. Art-Rise reportedly currently is awaiting official certification of its non-profit corporation papers from the state.

Griffith said he is at a loss to understand why the flyers were printed at the expense of San Bruno taxpayers on behalf of Art-Rise.

He asked who established an account for Art-Rise and if taxpayer funds have been intermingled with it. He also asked who authorized printing of the 1,600 flyers, and what other services have been performed by the city for that organization.

The flyers sought community support in establishing downtown art projects.

Mayor Gary Mondfrans called Griffith's statements nonsense and said Art-Rise volunteers should demand a full public apology from the councilman.

Shotgun-Wielding Bandit Holds Up Sandwich Shop

A man armed with a sawed-off shotgun held up the Viking Sandwich Shop, 316 El Camino Real, San Bruno, escaping with about $100 in cash.

According to San Bruno police, the man approached the store clerk outside the establishment at about 12:30 a.m., pulled out his shotgun, and ordered the clerk into the store.

Once inside, the suspect ordered the front door locked and the lights turned off. He then emptied the cash register and fled on foot northbound on El Camino Real.

The suspect is described by police as white, 23 to 24 years old, five feet 10, 160 pounds, with brown hair, eyes and a brown beard.

Le Pacini

Several weeks before the All-Star game, Bowie Kuhn said that he was for All-Star managers choosing former great older players for the team, even if their play didn't technically warrant it, because the oldies-but-goodies deserved to be honored.

Unfortunately, with expansion, there are enough washed-up former greats to fully stock both All-Star teams annually. Where do you draw the line? If it were up to Kuhn, I suppose, All-Star teams could become updated Old-Timers' games.

I say this is wrong. The "old" guys have had their time in the sun. Let the new stars, the kids who are compiling the impressive statistics, have theirs.

ONE EXCEPTION might have been Willie McCovey, a golden-oldie who also had the stats at All-Star break to legitimately make the team, and to place him in top contention for Comeback Player of the Year.

Incidentally, much has been made of McCovey's breaking his tie with Henry Aaron as the National League's all-time grand-slam hitter, and his closing in on the 500 homer plateau, but don't forget that he's already passed the great Bill Terry, also a first baseman, in total hits, which now places him third on the Giants' all-time hits list behind Willie Mays and Mel Ott. He is getting near the 2,000 hit plateau.

Willie is also closing in on all-time slugging averages for Giants. He won't pass Mays, who had a .564, but he's now awfully close to runner-up Johnny Mize's .549. And he's near 1,400 RBI.

If you haven't already guessed it, McCovey, with stiff competition from Darrell Evans, is also leading the Giants in game winning and go-ahead RBI, which shows that he isn't compiling just flashy statistics. And because Evans is matching McCovey in those categories despite less impressive stats, I feel he should be in the lineup every day, regardless of who the pitching opponent is.

OTHER INTERESTING Giants' stats, They've actually hit about half a dozen more homers than their opponents. But they have a base stealing percentage of only 53.8 to opposition's 62.7, despite the fine throwing of their catching staff, particularly Marc Hill. The problem is, Giants pitchers don't hold runners close enough to the bases to give the catchers an honest enough shot.

Also surprising, the Giants have turned about a dozen more doubleplays than they've hit into.

Another kicker, while the Giants may have the worst fielding percentage in baseball, as this is written Oakland, Boston and Seattle have made more total errors. The A's, incidentally, have the SECOND worst fielding percentage in the big leagues, which gives the Bay Area a monopoly on sloppy play.

Even MORE surprising, L.A.'s Dave Lopes has a lower fielding percentage than our own iron hands, Rob Andrews. In fact, Lopes has the lowest fielding average among second basemen in major league play. But don't feel discouraged. Andrews is right on his tail.

PLEASE NOTE that Giant fortunes picked up when manager Joe Altobelli finally got Andrews off second and Gary Thommason out of center field. They had been killing the Giants in those positions. With rookie shortstop Johnny Lemaster finally calmed down, and with the aforementioned Hill behind the plate, Andrew's and Thomasson's replacements — Vic Harris and Derrel Thomas — now give the Giants a respectable middle defense. It's an old baseball truism that a team needs defensive strength down the middle to win. Now, once the pitching staff gets healthy, we might have something.

I don't know if this stat is available anywhere, but if it is I'd like to bet that the Giants give up more hits to opposing pitchers than any team in baseball. It has nothing to do with Giant pitching ability, only concentration. If I were a manager, I'd fine any pitcher who allowed the other team's pitcher to get on base (except on errors), unless he was one of the few exceptional hitting pitchers in baseball. I might even double the fine on walks.

While still on Giants statistics, here's one you can win a trivia bet on. Bobby Bonds led the team in stolen bases (seven times) as often as Mays did — when the Giants were in San Francisco. But Bonds' seven were even more impressive than Mays', because they occurred consecutively. Also because Bonds averaged 38 steals per season during the years that he led the Giants, while Mays' average was only 18.

OBVIOUSLY, too much worth is too often, in baseball, placed on statistics.

For good example: so-called "Players of the Week" are almost always players who had high batting averages. Occasionally a pitcher who has set a strike-out record or who has thrown a no-hitter sneaks in. I don't remember ANY player ever making it for his defensive exploits, even as a part of hitting well for the week. A Lou Brock or a Maury Wills may have made it once or twice on base stealing binges, but it's always the hitters who make it, regardless of what they otherwise do on the field.

Perhaps a perfect example of the shoddy judgment was in the picking of Player of the Week is the time our own Rob Andrews made it with a great hitting streak — the same week he lost two or three games with his defense.

But, batting averages are more visible. They are published daily, nationally, and most voters for Player of the Week never see the player they vote for except in a box score.

IF I'VE ALREADY said this, stop me. But I still think the Cubs are no better than a third or fourth place team. They're winning now and everything is rosy and loose because Herman Franks is nicey-nice when he wins. But wait until the odds catch up with the Cubbies and they begin playing to their potential — which is losing. Then we'll see how many of the boys think Herman is jovial and good-natured and fun to be around.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: Pirate (late of A's) manager Chuck Tanner looks just like San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto.

LOCAL NOTE: Brett Lowart, former baseball, football and basketball star at Terra Nova High, has been named editor-in-chief of the fall edition of the "Skyline Press," Skyline College's award winning (best small college newspaper in the state) student newspaper.

Loward, a sophomore, was also an award winning writer and editor-in-chief of Terra Nova's equally award winning news-magazine, "Tiger Tales."

This marks a second big summer event for Lowart, who a few weeks ago was hired as an assistant varsity football coach at his alma mater.

About the only thing not going well for Lowart this summer is that he is, for the first time in three seasons, watching Giants games from the stands. Brett had been a Giant batboy but, he says, he "got too old."

TAG END: The Giants' great reliever, Gary Lavelle, at this writing has a better combined record of wins and saves than Charlie Hough, Rollie Fingers, Rich Gossage, Bill Campbell and Sparkly Lyle, all of whom get much better publicity than Lavelle. In fact, only the Cubs' Bruce Sutter has more wins-saves than Lavelle, and then only a combined three — with a team that wins much more than the Giants.

The Daly City's Recreation Department's summer program enjoyed great weather last week. Sunshine was in abundance at most playgrounds and the smell of barbeques filled the Daly City air.

This week's playground news:

SKYLINE

A new champ was crowned recently at Skyline School. Michael Kobyashki defeated nine straight opponents before losing to the recreation leader but still became The Caroms champ of the week. Second place went to Jack Bonfiglio with third and fourth to Robert Zucchiatti and Roland Ramirez.

A big barbeque was held on Thursday and a barbeque will be held every Thursday at Skyline. Jay Ramirez had Italian sausages, Scotty Parks and Dwayne Curry each had seven hot dogs. Arnold Ramirez and Roland Ramirez, Michael Koby, Tony Gainder, and Bobby Gertsie all ate their share.

The basketball players all enjoyed the slam dunk competition. Our hero this week goes to Dwayne Curry for his 35.5 points out of 40. Second place went to Paul Consentino. Other competitors were Orland Ramirez, Jeff Davis and Bob Gertsie.

Marcus Phelphs, Jody Hasting, Ghanda Mapp, Tony Gardner, Richard Marinos, Robert Thoma and Troy Williams, all visited Skyline last week. The third butterfingers of the week award goes to Scotty Parks for his gallant effort in whiffle ball.

WESTLAKE PARK

Thursday's sports contest day was soccer last week. In the boys 13 and up division, Marty Lager captured first place with Mike Bell second and Sean White third. In the boys 12 and under, Kevin Owens took first place with Jo-Jo Orman in second. In the girls 12 and under, Lisa Tory came away in first with Jeanette Holman in second and Tysann Crittle and Lianga Crittle also participating. Friday's barbeques are going strong with many hungry people being satisfied. Persons interested can bring their own meat to cook, with charcoal provided.

SERRAMONTE GYM

Outdoor activities start off most days at the Serramonte Gym with jogging and conditioning followed by tennis, soccer or strike-out. Among the early-bird joggers are Tomas Arcaya, George Furnanz and Roy Keegan. "Turkey of the Sea" award is bestowed upon Richie Pult for the second year in a row. At Fremont Central Park, Richie managed to sink his canoe with two others aboard within six minutes after leaving the dock.

In other action at the gym, strike-out competition runs strong with tough competition being waged by the likes of Tom Dacy, Nick Ciolino, Jon Madrieres, Roy Keegan, Steven Sirianni, George Furnanz, Chico Arcaya, and others. Indoor hockey seems to be dominated by such outstanding players as goalie Jon Pult.

"Mad-Man" Steve Beverly, Maurice Kelly, Susan Nelson, Debbie Cuadra, just to name a few. Also played at the gym, is warball featuring "Dirty" Wayne Wynn. Tom "The Target" Duag, Peter Calochidas, Curtis Wong, Cesar "The Sneak" Caliz and a host of others too numerous to name. Additionally, basketball, ping-pong, caroms and other activities are offered.

SB Legion In First

San Bruno Legion won a pair of games over the weekend and is now in sole possession of first place in the American Legion League standings with a 9-2 record.

San Bruno defeated South San Francisco on Friday 9-2 and then beat Pacifica on Sunday 3-1. Redwood City and San Mateo are tied for second with 8-3 records.

In other American Legion contests, Daly City topped the San Bruno Lions 6-3 and lost to Pacifica 10-8 while Redwood City hammered South City 15-7 and edged San Mateo 4-2.

Joe McClelland got the win in San Bruno's victory over South City. McClelland struck out 12 and walked two while allowing only four hits. Tommy Flynn had a solo homer for San Bruno in the fifth.

Ken Huffman handcuffed Pacifica on Sunday, giving up only three hits and fanning 12. Shortstop Scott Micheletti had three hits and two RBI's to pace San Bruno.

'Krazy' Olympics In DC

Daly City's Recreation Department is sponsoring a "Krazy" Olympics Day for all Daly City children between the ages of 7-14.

The activity will be held at Westmoor Park on July 26 and Marchbanks Park on July 28.

Both starting times are at 11 a.m.

A hot dog lunch for 75 cents, cotton candy and hot popcorn, along with a variety of "Krazy" games will highlight the days activities. Bus transportation will be provided for most playgrounds.

Baseball Action

A no-hitter for the host Mid-Peninsula team delighted more than 2,000 fans who witnessed the first weekend of action in the District 55 Minors Bobbysox softball tournament play at Chanteloup field.

Mid-Peninsula pitcher Karen Athanacio executed a 14-strikeout, no-hit performance to blank the Newark entry, 17-0.

Two-time All-Star Athanacio, who throws a cross-fire pitch off of a variety of deliveries, had ample help as the strong San Mateo squad slammed a total of 15 hits.

Big gun for the locals was first baseman Karen Vanderlinden, with five RBIs on three singles.

SSF Survives

Cellar-dweller Lou's 66 of Pacifica gave frontrunner South San Francisco a tough battle Wednesday night in North Peninsula Joe DiMaggio League action, but SSF prevailed 4-3.

South City is now 8-2 in league play while Lou's 66 slips to 2-8. Meanwhile, San Bruno took sole possession of first place as it beat Millbrae 9-4 while Eureka Federal Savings (San Mateo) handled Flying Goose (Daly City) 6-5.

Lou's took an early lead against South City on the strength of Mark Bancroft's three-run homer. However, SSF scratched for single runs in the third and sixth and then won the contest in the seventh on Jose Martinez' two-run single.

Rich Bordi picked up the win for SSF.

Jeff Siragusa's sacrifice fly provided the winning run in Eureka's victory over Flying Goose. Goose came back for one run in the bottom of the seventh and had runners on second and third with one out.

Paul Fox then retired the side with consecutive strike-outs to get credit for the win. Siragusa led Eureka's attack with three RBI's.

San Bruno scored nine times in the fourth inning to defeat Millbrae. San Bruno took advantage of five Millbrae errors and two walks in the inning (along with five hits) to put Millbrae away.

Group Takes on Pacifica's Youth Problems

By TERRY DAVENPORT

Citizens on the Pacifica Youth Committee think that tough action is needed to solve the city's youth-related problems.

They agreed at a meeting this week that suggestions for a city skating rink or a youth recreation center do not address the rising rates of truancy and juvenile crime.

As a task force of the Pacifica City Council, they intend to present some hardnosed solutions to the council in August that should startle some experts who work with youths.

One member, Hazel Campbell, said Oceana and Terra Nova high school administrators told her they have about 400 truants on any given school day.

To correct this problem, she proposes that students who are suspended from school be required to remain in a designated area that is supervised by accredited school personnel throughout the school day.

"This would remove the 'fun' from suspension and would eliminate kids hanging around school areas and streets," said Ms. Campbell. She pointed out that schools would not lose Average Daily Attendance funds under this plan.

Ms. Campbell also envisions more police attention to truants roaming the streets. With a supervised depository available, she said, police would no longer be tempted to ignore juveniles who obviously are cutting classes.

She proposes that the depository be the Pacifica Boys Club, and says so in a letter the committee is distributing today to school board members, the county Probation Department, the Board of Supervisors and Juvenile Judge Frank Rose.

She hopes to obtain positive feedback from these parties before she presents her ideas to the City Council.

Violet Gotelli suggested a diagnostic center that would determine if problem youths have learning problems. "They would tutor them to feed them back into the system. Meanwhile, they wouldn't disrupt the rest of the class," she said.

Other members of the committee are deeply concerned about what they see as a duplication of efforts among agencies dealing with Pacifica youths.

The committee is compiling a directory of all known groups working with youths in the city.

"I think what we're going to have to say to the council is that 'You're going to have to look hard at whom you fund,'" said John Lank, who heads the Boys Club.

"We only can build so many buildings for youths. What we've got to do for survival — the YMCA, the Boys Club and everyone else — is to share funds, staff and facilities. That's survival. If not, some of us are going to fold."

Lank noted the county is cutting funds available to such organizations this year. "There are 180 agencies applying for $200,000," Lank said.

It's no wonder that there is cutthroat competition among the agencies, he noted.

To encourage more communication and less duplication of efforts among these youth groups, the Pacifica Youth Committee will propose that executives dealing with youths in Pacifica have a monthly brown bag lunch together.

Mrs. Gotelli said she thought more than talk was needed to eliminate overlapping services.

"When will people stop and evaluate the programs they fund? Some people are getting big, fat paychecks while the kids are getting nothing," Mrs. Gotelli said.

As a solution, Lois Pacillo proposed a Citizens Advisory Committee that would ask each youth-oriented group to justify the funds it receives — "and not with phonied up statistics," she said.

Mrs. Pacillo asked 10 random California cities what projects they have to deal with problem youths. She received replies from four: Sacramento, Ukiah, Concord and Torrance.

Borrowing from their ideas, Mrs. Pacillo recommended the council set up a "Families Anonymous" program patterned after one operating successfully in Torance.

The program encourages parents and children who are in trouble to get together to discuss and find solutions for drug, truancy and promiscuity problems of youths.

Mrs. Pacillo also proposed that schools follow Sacramento's lead in employing boys and girls in clerical jobs at City Hall.

"City Hall is short of help due to cutbacks. Why can't we take young boys and girls and pay them the minimum wage while they're learning and, at the same time, gather school credit?" she said.

A grandparent herself, Mrs. Pacillo further suggested that the Laguna Salada Union School District begin a "Grandma and Grandpa" program in which older people would work with youngsters to teach them hobbies as practical skills.

The Pacifica Youth Committee will hold an open meeting in the community Aug. 4 at which members will ask all concerned citizens for input on solutions to the city's youth problems.

The committee also hopes to meet with the principals of all of Pacifica's schools.

The committee will make its final report to the City Council Aug. 22.

SSF Union Wins Strike

A union representing about 120 South San Francisco city employes will seek strike sanction from the San Mateo County Central Labor Council Monday night.

Peter Manion said that the employes involved who attended a meeting this week voted 63-3 to reject the city's most recent offer to the union.

Manion is business representative for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes Local 1506.

He represents clerical employes and those in public works, parks maintenance and sewage treatment.

A few of the 120 employes, Manion said, are members of the Marina Engineers Beneficial Association — another union which is seeking a joint contract with the AFSCME.

"I would categorize it as very serious at this point," Manion said of the employes' concern about negotiations.

Although he declined to be more specific, Manion said that only about 2 per cent separates the union request and the city's final offer in salaries and fringe benefits.

However, that 2 per cent, Manion said, still would only bring the employes up to the cost of living increase for the last year.

"We sincerely hope to avert a strike," Manion said.

"Our intention is to negotiate an agreement that's reasonable for both the union and the city."

The length of the contract, he said, is another item of dispute. The union is proposing a one-year contract, while the city is proposing a two-year agreement, he said.

Simultaneous Fires In SSF Bring Call For Outside Help

South San Francisco firemen were busy battling a house fire Friday night when they were alerted to a second fire in the industrial area of their city.

The first blaze occurred at the home of the Joe W. Byron family at 132 Ramona Ave.

Capt. Robert Lorenzini of the South San Francisco Fire Department said Joe Byron was in bed but not asleep in a downstairs bedroom when his daughter came from a neighbor's house across the street to tell him that the bedroom above him was on fire.

Three engines and one truck were dispatched at 10:28 p.m. The 16 firemen had the fire out within 10 minutes.

Capt. Lorenzini said damage to the house was extensive. He estimated damage at close to $10,000 on the contents and over $20,000 to the structure.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined. "Everything we looked for wasn't there," said Capt. Lorenzini.

About 40 minutes later, while firemen were still on the scene, they learned of another fire in a moving van parked in front of 124 Harbor Way.

The fire department shifted seven men and another engine to fight that fire, calling in units from Daly City and Brisbane to cover the main station.

Although there was nothing in the moving van other than pads and moving equipment, Capt. Lorenzini said damage to the trailer itself was severe. He termed the cause of the blaze "suspicious."

The van had the North American Van Lines logo painted on it, but fire officials have been unable to locate its owner.

San Bruno Council Spells Out Issues

San Bruno council members have adopted one proposed ballot measure turned down another, tabled another and continued discussion of yet another.

The council has set a special November election to elect a new city treasurer and has decided it's an opportunity for voters to advise the council on a number of issues.

The council on Monday night agreed to place a measure on the ballot that would limit council members to two consecutive terms.

In their latest action, on Wednesday, they:

• Approved, 4-1, a ballot measure proposed by Councilman Tony Governale that would set aside at least 10 per cent of every public meeting room in City Hall for smokers. Councilman John Barnard voted against the proposal.

• Unanimously tabled a proposal by Governale to have voters determine if the city should implement its own firefighter-paramedic program.

• Rejected, 1-4, a proposal by Mayor Gary Mondfrans to limit to $500 contributions to "promotional organizations," a measure particularly aimed at the San Bruno Chamber of Commerce and the county Convention Bureau.

• Continued until July 25 discussion of a possible ballot measure on a proposed pay television addition to the municipal cable system.

Costs May Affect Fate Of PRISM

By JANET PARKER

Many North County officials said Thursday night that costs will ultimately determine the fate of a proposed countywide criminal justice information retrieval system.

Several council members attending the North County Council of Cities meeting in San Bruno also were concerned about possible invasion of privacy that might occur when, and if, the system is implemented.

Their comments came after hearing Douglas Gray present a progress report on the county's attempt to establish a Participatory Records and Information System (PRISM).

The system will provide local law enforcement with a computerized network of instantly retrievable criminal information never before available in the county.

At the present, it can take officers several months to obtain all the information on a suspect's criminal background in this county.

Gray — a deputy district attorney assigned as PRISM project director — has been attending meetings in each of the cities outlining the merits of PRISM and trying to persuade councils to offer financial support.

PRISM is tagged to receive $650,000 from the federal government. However, the county Board of Supervisors and the individual cities must provide the remainder of the funding and pay for its costs in future years — with the county expected to pay 50 per cent.

Gray said that of those council members who have considered continuing funding PRISM just through Dec. 31, the vote has been 66-1 throughout the county.

"No city has yet opted out," Gray said.

However, some cities have not yet decided their future with PRISM. The cities of Atherton, Hillsborough, Foster City and Belmont in the South County, and Daly City in the North County have not yet decided about participation in the system.

The attitude in Atherton and Hillsborough, he said, has been "don't call us, we'll call you."

He has attended a study session in Daly City but the council there still has PRISM under consideration, he said.

Whether or not those cities eventually join the project, he said, a joint powers agency will be established for PRISM.

"I won't override those 66 council members," Gray said.

Just Thursday, the San Mateo firm of Hughes Heiss and Associates turned in its cost-effectiveness report on the project to the county Criminal Justice Council.

The report, he said, outlines three options for the future of PRISM. One of them, he called "very attractive" because it accomplishes the intent of PRISM but at a cost reduction of some $800,000.

He pointed out that next Friday the county Board of Supervisors will consider its budget for PRISM. County participation in the project, he said, "is crucial."

"If they do not participate, all of what we have done up to this point is gone," Gray said.

Councilman Bill Schumacher of Daly City told Gray his city is trying to realistically project future costs of PRISM, but that Gray hasn't been able to adequately present those.

"We do have some reservations," Schumacher said. His council estimates that participation will cost the city from $250,000 to $300,000 over the next three years.

The question, he said, is if the city can buy its own computer time for its police department at the same or less cost than it would be forced to contribute to PRISM.

Gray said later that he doesn't expect the cost to any one city over the three-year period to be more than $50,000. The figures presented by Schumacher, he said, are strictly that city's interpretation of the costs.

San Bruno Councilman Gary Mondfrans said he wants assurance that those persons not authorized to have information through the system will not be able to get their hands on it.

"When that is worked out, I'll be more comfortable," he said. Other council members echoed his concern.

However, Millbrae Councilman Tulio Bertini said invasion of privacy is a secondary issue. The main concern, he contended, is cost of the project.

Retirees Explain Joy

If you're retired or getting close to retirement, a lively group of men and women who already have reached that stage have created their own program for lifelong learning.

They are members of the Center for Learning in Retirement, based at the University of California Extension Center in San Francisco. They will host an open introductory meeting Aug. 8.

It is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. in the Center Gallery at the UC Extension facility, Laguna and Market Streets. Anyone at or near retirement age can attend.

The group's activities include workshops, study groups, field trips, lectures and participation in regular UC Extension adult education courses.

Organized in 1973, CLIR now has nearly 200 members. It was the first such university-related project in the western United States and has been a model for similar efforts elsewhere.

For more information about the introductory meeting and CLIR call 863-4518 or visit the Extension Center.

Pacifica Aide Raps Staff

By TERRY DAVENPORT

A Pacifica city administrator has blasted his own department for inefficient practices which Pacifica residents long have criticized in private.

Director of Community Development and Services Stephen Street lambasts his department in a report, calling it a "labyrinth — hard to understand and highly costly . . . in terms of both time and money."

Street says he is well aware that the department lacks credibility and is a source of frustration to the city manager, City Council and the public, primarily for "the seeming lack of consistency in the way the department is operated.

"I know of several cases where individuals have paid money and invested time in processing applications only to find their proposed projects untenable."

Community Development and Services handles city planning, engineering and building, maintains city facilities and runs the sewage treatment plant. The department consolidated three separate departments two years ago and lost about 20 employes in 1976 when Pacifica slashed city jobs.

In the four months that he has been at the helm, Street said, he's noticed that individuals continue to overlap efforts as if there still were separate departments.

"Professional staff and the support staff approach the work as if no merger existed. Separate files are maintained by each 'division' even if the same information is filed in both the planning files and the engineering files. Communication, when it exists, between the 'divisions' is very formalistic," Street says in his report.

Despite the drastically reduced number of employes in the department, Street notes that workers are striving to maintain the same workload as in the past.

The result, he says, is frustration. He commented Friday that frustration is one of the reasons the department has lost five of its 12 key administrators in recent months.

Street also is critical of how little concern his employes show for the budget, which has been particularly tight in the last two years.

"Not one of the division heads had reviewed the monthly trial balance prior to my coming. As a policy document, the budget was ignored. Expenditures were reported as they were shown in the budget without any consideration given to what, in fact, the money was spent for," Street charges.

For all of these reasons, Street said he is faced with the problem of establishing credibility.

"No one seems to want to believe our word. I always have to super-document. If I want to spend money on equipment, the City Council always questions my requests," he said.

He doesn't believe his criticism comes as a surprise to either the City Council or the department employes, since he's been openly talking about the problems for some time.

One of his corrective measures is to require each division in the department to document its work in progress as well as its work backlog and to evaluate the short-range and long-range implications of those tasks.

As soon as the 1977-78 city budget is set, Street intends to begin in-house training on ways to assure quality work and budgetary and fiscal controls.

Some heads will roll as a result of an evaluation of all current personnel. Street said he is evaluating individuals who now function in management roles and will replace them as necessary.

He is attempting to draw up realistic goals for the department. Since his reduced staff means that the department cannot maintain the past level of service, Street said he'll consult with the city manager and City Council to set priorities for the department's functions.

Street admits that the task ahead is difficult, since many of his employes appear to resist change.

On the other hand, he believes a streamlined structure with fewer overlapping responsibilities will enable his staff to produce higher quality work and may stem the high turnover rate within the department.

That, he says, is what Pacifica's taxpayers deserve for their money.

He estimates that it will take three months to implement a new system and less than a year to attain the desired results.

DC Man 1977 'Entrepreneur'

The second annual Entrepreneur of the Year award, along with a $10,000 cash grant, has been awarded to Keith R. Thomas, 24, executive vice president of Pereira-Thomas and Associates Advertising/Public Relations.

The award was made by Junior Achievement, Inc. and is to be used by Thomas in the development of his advertising agency.

Thomas, a resident of Daly City and 1967 graduate of Serramonte High School, was chosen from a wide field of candidates nationwide because of his past performance in the Junior Achievement program and the record of his agency's accomplishments.

He will attend the National Junior Achievement Conference in Bloomington, Ind. in August to accept the award.

Thomas and Ron Pereira, his partner, established their agency three years ago while both were pursuing marketing degrees at San Francisco State University.

Beginning with small accounts they operated for six months out of Thomas' home in Daly City, but then moved into an office in downtown San Francisco. Their client list past and present includes NASA-Ames Research Center, ROOTS Natural Footwear, Westlake Shopping Center, the Business Journal, San Francisco Arthritis Foundation, Security National Bank and Wiseman Toy Manufacturing.

Keith R. Thomas

Thomas also was recognized recently as "San Francisco Citizen of the Day" for his community involvement and was named 1976 President of the Year, Ad 2 Division of the American Advertising Federation.

Junior Achievement, a worldwide non-profit organization, is dedicated to the learn-by-doing process of teaching high school students the fundamentals of the free enterprise system.

THE ENGINEER'S ESTIMATE OF TOTAL CONSTRUCTION COST FOR THE WORK IS:

$ 910,760.00

The foregoing quantities are approximate only, being given as a basis for the comparison of bids, and the San Mateo County Flood Control District does not, expressly or by implication, agree that the actual amount of work will correspond herewith, but reserves the right to increase or decrease the amount of any class or portion of the work, or to omit any portion of the work, as may be deemed necessary or expedient by the Engineer.

Pursuant to Section 1773 of the Labor Code, prevailing wage rates have been advertised in a newspaper of general circulation and copies are available in the office of the Director of Public Works and in the office of the Clerk of the Board as adopted by Resolution No. 36405 of the Board of Supervisors on the 7th day of September 1976, establishing such prevailing wage rates. Said prevailing wage rates shall be made available to any interested party on request, and in such case the successful bidder shall post a copy thereof at each job site.

Overtime — Not less than one-and-one-half (1½) times the above rates. Sundays and holidays — Not less than two (2) times the above rates.

The holidays upon which such rates shall be paid shall be all holidays recognized in the collective bargaining agreement applicable to the particular craft, classification, or type of workman employed on the project.

It is the policy of the County that contractors on public projects employ their workers and craftsmen from the local labor market whenever possible. "Local Labor Market" is defined as the labor market within the geographical confines of the County of San Mateo, State of California. Consistent with this policy, the contractor is requested to employ his craftsmen and other workers from the local labor market whenever possible to do so.

Each bidder shall submit with his bid a Certificate of Compliance, on a form provided in the "Proposal" section of these contract documents, certifying that he is in compliance with the provisions of the Equal Employment Opportunity Requirement of Executive Order 11246, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the California Fair Employment Practices Act, and any other federal or state laws and regulations relating to equal employment opportunity. With the execution of said certificate, the bidder also agrees that he will develop and implement, during the course of the work concerned, an affirmative action program of hiring and employment, conducted without regard to race, color, national origin, ancestry or religion of the applicants. With this certification, he shall submit any and all information which may be required by the District in connection with the particular project.

Plans and specifications and forms of proposal and contract may be seen and obtained at the office of the Director of Public Works, 590 Hamilton Street, Redwood City, California. Plans and Specifications may be obtained for a refundable fee of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per set. This fee is refundable, less mailing costs, if the plans and specifications are returned to the Director of Public Works within 30 days after bid opening.

Additional technical questions should be directed to Wilsey & Ham. Procedural questions should be directed to the Office of the Director of Public Works, County Office Building, Redwood City, California.

No bids will be accepted from a bidder who is not licensed as required by laws of the State of California.

The San Mateo County Flood Control District reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and/or waive any informalities or irregularities in any bid received.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of sixty (60) days after the date set for the opening thereof.

Big Pacifica Pool Delayed To Aug. 18

Pacifica will have to wait a little longer for the 300,000-gallon pool that is being constructed on the Oceana High School campus.

The completion date for the pool, originally scheduled for today, has been changed to Aug. 18. The extension was approved last week by the Jefferson Union High School District Board of Trustees over the protests of Trustee John Sloane.

Sloane objected that contractors will not respect project deadlines if the trustees continued to grant extensions.

Pacifica Director of Recreation Virginia Jaquith said the delay was understandable since the contractor had to deal with bad weather and electricians' union strike.

She confirmed that the Department of Parks, Beaches and Recreation will lose some funds due to the delay, since it was counting on monies from a swim program.

"On the other hand," said Ms. Jaquith, "we don't have the expenses of maintaining the pool during those weeks."

Pacificans have been urging the construction of the pool for 15 years. When completed, it will be the largest indoor pool in San Mateo County.

Airport Progress Reports Set

Public reports on progress at San Francisco International Airport will be made at the start of each meeting of the San Francisco Airports Commission.

According to public relations officer Warren Hanson, airport planner Dale Fearn will describe the status of planning for cargo operations.

Airport Director Richard Heath has also requested public management reports on parking rates, and bus and taxi service.

Alfred Frankenstein, San Francisco art critic and member of the city's Arts Commission, will report on his group's efforts to enrich design of the new North Terminal.

In future meetings, Heath has directed, reports will be given on "what's really happening at the airport."

Airlines Support Regulation Plan

United Airlines, San Mateo county's largest employer, and Hughes Airwest, the only airline headquartered here, have both announced support for proposed deregulation of America's airline industry.

United president Richard Ferris said in Chicago Thursday that his company supports a bill being considered by the Senate Transportation Committee. The proposal would reduce interference with the industry, Ferris said.

Russell Stephenson, general manager of Airwest, espouses much the same position.

"We believe improvements can be made in four areas," Stephenson said, "market entry and exit, regulatory procedures, pricing, and protection of small city service."

There is need for more competition in some areas, he said.

There also is need for airlines to be able to move quickly to provide new service, rather than wait years for governmental approval, and to be equally responsive if no service is desired.

There needs to be reform in the way governmental regulations are processed, and flexibility in pricing should be allowed, he said.

United's president said the bill proposed by Democratic Senators Howard Cannon of Nevada and Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts would provide for gradual changes in regulations on routes and fares.

Ferris said SB-689 would make it easier for competitors to enter new markets, and provide subsidies for air service to small communities.

Edible Species

Although man has used about 3,000 different plant species, and has cultivated more than 150 species, only 16 plant species feed the world — five cereals (rice, wheat, corn, sorghum and barley); two sugar plants (sugar cane and sugar beets); three root crops (potato, sweet potato and cassava); three legumes (common bean, soybean and peanut) and three tree crops (coconut, banana and nuts).

Oyster Point Expansion Foes File Petitions

By JANET PARKER

Opponents of South San Francisco's plans to expand Oyster Point Marina submitted signatures of more than 2,500 residents to the city clerk Wednesday, asking that the project be placed on a referendum ballot.

Just five hours later, however, City Atty. John Noonan said he may advise the council to challenge the validity of the petitions.

Noonan said if the councilmen were to allow a ballot measure on the basis of petitions that may not be valid, they could be subject to a taxpayers' suit.

Members of the United Taxpayers Association, sponsors of the petition drive, suggested for their part that they will take the city to court if the petitions are not validated.

Either way, litigation is on the minds of the five councilmen.

"I have serious reservations regarding the validity of a referendum which attacks the action of the council on June 15," Noonan said. He said he has not reviewed the petitions but will have an opinion by July 20.

The council on June 15 authorized its city manager to sign an agreement for consulting engineering services for the $8.4 million project, as well as an agreement with the San Mateo County Harbor District for financial assistance.

South San Francisco has been eyeing marina expansion for more than four years.

However, an organization of South San Francisco taxpayers has vowed for the last year to fight the council if it proceeded with the project without voter approval.

UTA leaders say the project could escalate to $10 million or more and that it could end up draining the city's general fund if it does not turn out to be a money-making project.

After the council's most recent action concerning the marina, the UTA immediately began circulating its petitions. It had to collect signatures of 10 per cent of the city's voters — about 1,850 persons — in 30 days.

The petitions were submitted to City Clerk Art Rodondi 3 p.m. Wednesday. UTA leader Jim Keegan said 2,800 signatures were counted, while Rodondi said his preliminary, unofficial count is 2,676 — still well above the number needed.

Noonan has suggested at other times that there may be some doubt cast on the validity of the petition.

He said a referendum must be based upon a legislative action by a governing body. He also has said in the past that he believes the council's "legislative action" relating to the marina occurred on Sept. 8, 1975, when the Department of Navigation and Ocean Development agreement was signed.

The action on June 15, when the referendum push began, may have been simply another legislative action, Noonan maintains.

His announcement, though, on Wednesday night at a special council meeting appeared to surprise a few councilmen, since Noonan had been quiet about the matter while signatures were being collected.

Councilman William Borba, who has opposed the marina project, questioned Noonan's doubting of the petitions.

He said other groups have submitted referendum petitions to the council in the past and no one has ever challenged their validity.

"You are going to get it (a taxpayers' suit) one way or another," Borba said.

"I just feel duty-bound to bring this to your attention," Noonan said. "I don't want to raise a lot of speculation."

He noted it's ultimately up to the council how to proceed.

Earlier in the meeting, Mayor Emanuele Damonte read a statement concerning the challenge against the marina.

"Charges that citizens should be asked to vote on the marina park project imply that the City Council wants to deny citizens their rights," Damonte said. "This is not true and the record should be set straight."

He said projects that are clearly "self-supporting, which do not require any general tax support" are not ordinarily referred to the voters. The time delay in the project and the election expense increases the project costs, he added.

The financial guarantees offered by the county harbor district, the mayor said, have assured a majority of the council that the taxpayer is fully protected.

Damonte also said hasty action toward an election might cut off loan commitments for the project.

If the marina expansion doesn't proceed, he said, the city will have to spend $1 million from the general fund on state-acquired water quality control measures.

Borba, however, said the focus on water quality measures and the $1 million expenditure is a "scare tactic." Such tactics, he maintained, have been used by the city staff before to urge the council to support various projects.

He insisted there are no guarantees the project will be a money-maker.

City Manager Walter Birkelo has said he expects the project to make money by 1981.

"It's no more than rhetoric," Borba said. "I don't see where we are going to make a profit."

Move by Griffith Fails

A San Bruno councilman who has twice claimed he was denied his turn as mayor under the rotational system failed in an attempt recently to steer the city toward a directly elected mayor.

The council voted 3-2 — with Councilmen Dick Griffith and Tony Governale in opposition — to draft an ordinance requiring the council to select its mayor every year using a rotational system.

In the past, rotation from the vice mayor's chair to the mayorship has been an informal policy.

The specifics of that now formal rotational system have yet to be determined, but it appears it will be based upon seniority.

Griffith said an ordinance requiring the rotational method is unsatisfactory.

"I don't believe we could honor an ordinance," Griffith said. "I really think it would be a farce."

Griffith was bypassed in 1976 when it was his turn to be elevated from vice mayor to mayor.

Some council members said it was because Griffith was campaigning for a seat on the Board of Supervisors. Others said it was because he couldn't be trusted to represent the majority viewpoint of the city.

He demanded the mayorship again in 1977 but was refused by his colleagues.

Griffith proposed recently that the council place on the November ballot a procedure which would automatically make the two highest vote-getters in any election mayor and vice mayor, respectively. In the off-election year, the vice mayor would rotate into the mayor's chair.

City Atty. Joseph Galligan had offered an alternative method of selecting a mayor allowed under the state code applying to general law cities such as San Bruno.

Voters would determine if they should directly elect a mayor along with the four council members and decide if the mayor should serve for two or four years.

Neither proposal was agreeable to the majority of the council.

Councilman argued over the complications of such a procedure.

Mayor Gary Mondfrans had said a councilman should have to resign his seat on the council to run for mayor.

Governale said the seat should be given up only if that councilman is elected mayor.

"This would create far more havoc in the city," Councilwoman Marge Kozkowski said. "There's absolutely no way to submit this on a ballot."

"I don't think the rotational system is a bad system," she added.

Governale, however, at an earlier meeting, had called it "garbage" to believe the council would stick by the rotational system in subsequent years.

"It's not binding and the only way to make it binding is by a vote of the people," Governale said.

Both Governale and Mondfrans suggested there were political motivations in the various different proposals, and both denied those motivations involved either one of them.

Mondfrans said if the council made a formal ordinance out of the rotational system it would be locked in forever.

"I don't think they (a future council) would have the audacity to change the rotational system and it would be quite blatantly political if they did," Mondfrans said.

Mondfrans and Griffith's arguments probably stemmed more out of bitterness than logic.
